1 THE COURT: Welcome to another edition of hard 2 ball. As Chris Matthews says, that sometime I'm going to 3 tell you what I really think, but not at the beginning.

4 I'd like to thank everybody for being here. I have 5 your appearances. You've all had a lot of time to think 6 about the solution to the problem and I want to hear from 7 you today because I really want to make a record.

8 I received all of your thoughtful letters and from 9 those letters there are certain inevitable truths that 10 emerge that -- nobody has to write this down, Mr. Baena, 11 don't write it down, it's not that inevitable or ultimate.

12 There's certain truths that exist that will guide
13 the Court, and the first of those is that whatever we do, 14 people want finality. There has to be finality.

15 The second is that in zero to six months, when we 16 got this case ready for September 30th, people expended much 17 time, effort, thought, resources, and I believe that it 18 would be wasteful not to pursue this case diligently and 19 promptly. So, it probably means that for those people who 20 will argue for including this particular action in a plan of 21 confirmation to be litigated by a representative who knows 22 when, I'm not seriously thinking about that, and some of the 23 options that have been presented to the Court are the 24 appointment of a trustee. Well, that's mainstream. If you
25 read Cybergenics, you know that's not really rocket science

1 because debtor-in-possession or trustee, we all understand 2 what they mean.

3 There's been a proposal for a limited trustee, 4 proposal for an examiner, proposal for a declaratory
5 judgment. I would like to hear today people argue the issue
6 of waiver on behalf of the debtor-in-possession and Sealed 7 Air, that they waived whatever defense they could have 8 raised as to the capacity to sue by the committees because 9 Cybergenics is an affirmance of a lower court opinion. It
10 was out there. It was up in the Circuit once before, so, it 11 shouldn't have been a surprise to everyone, so, there's an 12 issue of waiver.

13 The Court has also given great thought to an 14 expedited appeal that, because of the action taken by all 15 concerned, the trial date of September 30, the opinion 16 coming out on September 20, the projected cost to the 17 estate, and I would imagine that, I haven't seen any figures 18 but I wouldn't be surprised if counsel fees in the last six 19 months for all parties would approximate ten million 20 dollars, and it would be terribly wasteful not to pursue 21 this case promptly, so, there should be an expedited, 22 potentially an expedited appeal to the Third Circuit Court 23 of Appeals as to maybe relief from the stricture of the 24 Cybergenics opinion.

25 I also understand, I haven't had an opportunity to

1 read it, but that there's an application en banc in 2 Cybergenics that was recently filed. Mr. Bernick, 3 obviously, you haven't seen it, either.

4 MR. BERNICK: I have glimpsed it in hard copy but I
5 have not read it.

6 THE COURT: Then I misread your body language. But 7 in any event, if the feelings of the bankruptcy bar could be 8 converted into some type of force, then Cybergenics, from 9 what I've heard, would be blown away into nothingness.

10 I haven't heard one bankruptcy practitioner speak 11 in favor of Cybergenics, and I will not call on any 12 particular bankruptcy practitioner to express his or her 13 opinion.

14 So, we have all these options here today. I want
15 to tell you one thing that I'm thinking about, and I hope 16 this invites a mandamus or something like that. I'm going 17 to set a trial date of December 2nd, and unless somebody 18 mandamuses me or whatever, we're going to go ahead on 19 December 2nd.

20 Now, in the order I'd like to hear from people 21 today, I understand there's a representative here from the 22 United States Trustee's Office, whom I do not know. Is it 23 going to be you, Mr. Purch, or someone else?

24 MR. PURCH: Yes, your Honor.

25 THE COURT: I just wasn't sure. The United States

1 Trustee filed a memorandum, and I don't know if anybody had 2 an opportunity to read the memorandum. Did everybody get 3 the United States Trustee's memorandum?

4 Okay. Fine. Then we know what it says. I thought 5 it was a thoughtful memorandum and it raises many of the 6 questions that the Court had given some thought to in 7 advance of the memorandum, but I won't take credit for them.
8 I'll let the United States Trustee take credit and, so, Mr.
9 Purch, if you want to address the Court, you may. And what 10 I'm really looking to accomplish today is not just some 11 academic exercise, but I also want to make a real record, 12 because together with what we did on, I guess it was 13 September 24, that transcript, I want this transcript to 14 exist, and I want both transcripts to go up to the Third 15 Circuit Court of Appeals on some expedited basis.

16 Mr. Purch, I'll hear from you, sir.

17 MR. PURCH: Thank you very much, your Honor. Good 18 afternoon. May it please the Court, Frank Purch for the 19 United States Trustee. With me today is Roberta DeAngelis, 20 the Assistant U.S. Trustee for the District of Delaware, and 21 also Robert Schneider, another trial attorney assigned to 22 the Newark office who has been assisting us on the briefing 23 of these matters.

24 Your Honor, we think, as we expressed in our 25 memorandum, that the first thing that can be done in the

1 posture in which we find ourselves here is take a breath 2 because --

3 THE COURT: We did that. Last week we took a 4 breath.

5 MR. PURCH: We can take another breath, your Honor, 6 because a petition has been filed in the Circuit for 7 rehearing en banc of the Cybergenics case. I would imagine 8 that we will hear quickly whether or not the Court will 9 entertain the petition for rehearing.

10 If the Court chooses not to entertain the petition
11 for rehearing, then we know what the landscape is. We know 12 that the decision stands and we can go forward on that 13 basis. If the Court chooses to entertain the petition for 14 rehearing, presumably at that point also the Court will give 15 some indication of what type of briefing and argument
16 schedule will pertain to the rehearing and, therefore, there 17 might be some context, and I don't want to go too far out on 18 a limb --

19 THE COURT: What time period do you project that it 20 be; two months, three months?

21 MR. PURCH: Well, as I said, it's speculative right 22 now. If the Court grants a rehearing, how much time they'll 23 allow for briefing and argument and how much time might go 24 before an opinion issues --

25 THE COURT: Let me ask you this question. If that

11

1 be the case, mandate hasn't issued, the matter is up on 2 appeal, why can't I try the case?

3 MR. PURCH: That would be one option.

4 THE COURT: Because it's not the law in the Third
5 Circuit until the mandate issues.

6 MR. PURCH: I think that's one option that's 7 available. What I think would be appropriate is whether -- 8 let's first find out whether a rehearing is going to occur.
9 If it's going to be denied, then we know what that means.
10 If it is going to occur, at that point, your Honor, you
11 could decide whether, after inquiry, perhaps more briefing 12 from the parties, whether it would be appropriate to 13 continue the matter further or whether it would be 14 appropriate, your Honor, to proceed with the trial under 15 some proceeding with the existing parties, or whether it 16 would be appropriate for your Honor to make some 17 determination at that point regarding who the proper parties 18 to the trial are.

19 THE COURT: Well, Mr. Purch, Mr. Wasserstein and I, 20 we're getting older, we're getting on in years, so, 21 therefore, why can't we proceed on a dual track?

22 MR. PURCH: I think you can, and that was going to 23 be my second point, your Honor. I think there are issues 24 that can be addressed right away, and I think the first 25 issue that should be addressed, which did not seem to us to

1 have been addressed to date by the parties in the 2 submissions and in the argument on September 24, is the 3 question of whether, in fact, the defense of suit not being 4 brought by the real party-in-interest is still available to 5 the defendants or whether it has been waived due to the fact 6 that they did not raise that defense in their answer to the 7 complaint.

8 Their answer to the complaint raised a defense of 9 lack of standing but the Cybergenics decision expressly 10 states it's not a standing decision.

11 I did a little bit of quick research, and these 12 cases are not in the memorandum because I found them this 13 morning. There are at least two cases that I found just 14 doing some very quick research that indicate that the issue 15 of lack of the real party-in-interest is a waivable defense.

16 One is the Third Circuit decision from 1994 called 17 Allegheny International versus Allegheny Ludlam Steel. Its 18 cite is 40 F. 3rd, 1416. There's an Eastern District of 19 Pennsylvania case, it's an old case from 1953 but it still 20 appears to be good law, called McLouth, M-c-L-o-u-t-h, 21 versus Mesta Machine Company and the cite is 116 F. Sup.
22 689, and the reason why I dredge up that somewhat older case 23 is that that is a situation that specifically involved an 24 attempt to raise the defense four days before trial, which 25 is very much the sort of situation --

1 THE COURT: Nobody follows Fed Sup. cases. You
2 know that. Right?

3 MR. PURCH: But the Third Circuit issue from 1994
4 much more recently is in line with that, and what I suggest,
5 your Honor, is that what can happen, even while a petition
6 for rehearing is pending, is that your Honor could direct 7 the parties to brief the issue of whether the defense has 8 been waived. I'm not suggesting your Honor should decide it 9 today. I think Sealed Air should have an opportunity to 10 state their opinion on it. The committee plaintiffs should 11 have an opportunity to state their position.

12 Your Honor, I don't expect Sealed Air to concede to 13 waive a defense.

14 THE COURT: Anything is possible.

15 MR. PURCH: But I don't expect them to concede
16 anything. I think that probably with the possible exception 17 of simply appointing a plenary trustee, which is exactly 18 what Cybergenics says, with the possible exception of that, 19 I would expect Sealed Air's counsel obviously to want to 20 protect their client's interests and, so, we're going to 21 have to proceed under the assumption that Sealed Air is 22 going to at least reserve its rights to challenge whatever 23 other decision might be made.

24 The question, therefore, your Honor, is, as we've 25 suggested in our memorandum, what is it that can be done in

1 this context if Cybergenics stands. What can be done in 2 this context that is most consistent with Cybergenics.
3 Since I don't view anything in Cybergenics as intending to 4 change the law on Rule 17(a) and, therefore, intending to 5 change the law that real party-of-interest is a waivable 6 defense, I think that a determination that Sealed Air has 7 waived the defense or determination that it has not waived 8 the defense is a determination that the Court can make 9 that's fully consistent with Cybergenics.

10 In fact, considering the discussion in a somewhat 11 different posture that exists in the Cybergenics opinion of 12 the 17(a) issue presented there, the committee had not moved 13 for a trustee even though they knew that the issue was live
14 and so on. It's the same sort of argument that exists here.

15 Looking at the other options, your Honor, that have 16 been proposed, we certainly share the Court's concerns about 17 efficiency and finality and, therefore, once again, if 18 Cybergenics stands, we have some serious questions about 19 some of the other options that have been proposed.

20 With respect to the concept of having an examiner 21 being given enough of the trustee powers to pursue these 22 fraudulent conveyance actions, that certainly is facially 23 appealing in the sense that, yes, the bankruptcy code does 24 under Section 1106 create the possibility that an examiner
25 can be assigned certain trustee duties.

1 The difficulty that we have in viewing that and in 2 getting a comfort level about that is that assuming that you
3 can delegate these kinds of duties to an examiner, it
4 doesn't appear to be something that the Third Circuit
5 contemplated because the Third Circuit spent a lot of time
6 and a lot of struggle interpreting the phrase "the trustee
7 may" under Section 544(b), "the trustee may seek to avoid a 8 transfer", and the Third Circuit says trustee obviously 9 means the trustee, and the Third Circuit says that under 10 Section 1107, the debtor-in-possession, unless those duties 11 are taken away, has certain duties of a trustee.

12 THE COURT: Did you ever see the briefs in 13 Cybergenics? I never saw the briefs.

14 MR. PURCH: I never saw the briefs, your Honor.

15 THE COURT: Because perhaps the Court did not opine 16 on an examiner or a limited trustee because it was never 17 before them.

18 MR. PURCH: That's possible, although the type of 19 statutory analysis reasoning that the Court uses would tend 20 to lead one, in our opinion, to the conclusion that if we 21 say one thing, we don't mean something else that we could 22 have added to that list but we didn't, because that's 23 really, therefore, the Court's way of interpreting the 24 statute.

25 THE COURT: Well, potentially they read Hartford

1 with comfort and felt they didn't have to go any further.

2 MR. PURCH: But they read Hartford to say trustee 3 means trustee and debtor-in-possession, not trustee and 4 debtor-in-possession and examiner given certain trustee 5 powers under 1106, and given the way that the Circuit seems 6 then to have spent some time talking about, well, what other 7 options, and that phraseology is even used in the opinion 8 somewhere, these are other options that could have been 9 available to the committee, it would strike me that if 10 someone were going to try and look at what options might be 11 available, that this was one that might have been on their 12 list of options but might not.

13 The point, your Honor, is ultimately that while we 14 can have this discussion about what they might have meant, 15 what we're buying, of course, is a rather involved, 16 potentially involved appellate process of determining on a 17 proceeding brought by Sealed Air to raise the issue whether 18 an examiner is within the scope of what the Cybergenics --

19 THE COURT: So, the premise of your argument is 20 what you see is what you get.

21 MR. PURCH: We're all safe if we stay at that 22 point. My point, your Honor, is that if we want to do 23 something that's safe, as safe as we can possibly make it, 24 as certain as we can possibly make it, we ought to stay 25 within the safe zone, and this is strained beyond the safe

1 zone.

2 THE COURT: And you say the same thing about a
3 limited trustee?

4 MR. PURCH: Your Honor, our argument about a 5 limited purpose trustee is set forth in our papers. The 6 difficulty that we have with it, notwithstanding the fact 7 that there are a couple of cases which we cited where 8 something like that was ordered, is that it doesn't really 9 seem to be consistent with what the code provides for.

10 It would seem that the code fairly contemplated 11 that when a trustee is appointed, that a trustee takes 12 possession of all the assets of the estate. The trustee's 13 compensation is, in fact, based upon the presumption that 14 the trustee has control of the assets, and, furthermore, if 15 you take a look at Section 1105, Section 1105, in fact, 16 provides for a mechanism for the trustee, upon request of a 17 party-of-interest, the trustee's appointment to be 18 terminated and the debtor restored to possession.
19 Everything that you read in the code presumes that when a 20 trustee is appointed, the trustee takes possession.

21 What we've stated, your Honor, is that we don't 22 think the reasoning of the cases that purported to create a 23 limited purpose trustee is sound. In fact, of the three 24 cases involved, only one attempts to come up with any 25 rationale, and that's the Intercat case from Georgia, and

1 the Intercat case, in our opinion, really goes at it 2 backwards by using 1107, which defines the duties of 3 debtor-in-possession, to back into what the duties of a 4 trustee might be, and the Intercat court ruled that, well, 5 because under 1107 the Court has the power to take duties
6 away from the debtor-in-possession, they got to go somewhere 7 else, and we'll say they can go to a trustee, but the code 8 in fact says where they go, they go to an examiner, because 9 Section 1106(d) says that the Court may direct the examiner 10 to perform any duties of the trustee which the 11 debtor-in-possession is directed not to perform, which, once 12 again, if the Third Circuit had said an examiner worked, 13 this all would be a lot easier.

14 Your Honor, we then are left with -- one more point 15 about concept of a limited purpose trustee. I'm sure that 16 you'll hear from the debtor, as the debtor has indicated 17 before, that appointment of the trustee has potential for 18 all sorts of bad things to happen in the case and the 19 trustee really has -- the flip side, as it were, in fact, 20 that the code does not contemplate any limits on the powers 21 of the trustee, any limits on the statutory powers, is that 22 the trustee has a fiduciary duty and discretion in how to 23 exercise his or her powers.

24 The trustee is not required to fire all the 25 employees, is not required to show all the management to the

1 door. The trustee is not required to totally change the way
2 the business operates.

3 THE COURT: That's one side of the coin and that's 4 what you argue in your memorandum to the Court, but the 5 other side of the coin may be acts may occur over which the 6 trustee doesn't take any act or control, like maybe 7 management contracts are abrogated and management says, by 8 the way, we're not staying on with the trustee, so, you've 9 got no management, DIP financing may evaporate, because 10 appointing of a trustee may be regarded as an act of 11 default.

12 People who deal with a particular company when 13 confronted with a trustee to operate with no management and 14 DIP financing evaporated may be concerned about the ability 15 of the corporation to meet its commitments in terms of its 16 business.

17 MR. PURCH: I have a couple of responses to that.
18 One is, of course, that to the extent that these types of 19 doomsday clauses were things that were approved by the 20 bankruptcy court in the course of the bankruptcy process, 21 there certainly, I think, would be the opportunity for the 22 trustee to come to the Court and seek relief or modification 23 from some of the effects of these provisions.

24 Secondly, with respect to the effects of the 25 trustee --

1 THE COURT: Wait. Let's take DIP financing. The 2 trustee can come to me and argue till the trustee is blue in 3 the face and I could be sympathetic, and the hard-nose banks 4 say, ut-uh, we're pulling our financing.

5 MR. PURCH: The banks may have the negative ability 6 to do that. We have to decide in this, as in many 7 instances, your Honor, whether we're going to presume that 8 people will act in an economically irrational way or whether 9 they'll act in an economically rational way. Is it 10 economically rational for the banks to suddenly yank the 11 financing and plunge the debtor into nothingness? Will the 12 banks ever see their money back?

13 THE COURT: I don't know. What will ensue is 14 probably a Chapter 7 dissolution and the banks may or may 15 not get their money. I don't know.

16 MR. PURCH: There have been trustees appointed in 17 some many, many large cases and trustees have operated 18 businesses in many large cases.

19 Another point about this, your Honor, is obviously 20 we're having this discussion based on the assumption that we 21 may find that we have to make -- that the Third Circuit's 22 decision is law and we have to deal with it where it is.

23 While I'm not going to try to get inside the head 24 of the panel judges and explain exactly how they came to 25 this rationale, I will say that certainly I think we can

1 presume that the judges were aware that there is an existing 2 legal standard under Section 1104 for appointment of a 3 trustee, and that when the Third Circuit speaks in the 4 Cybergenics case that either a debtor-in-possession or a 5 trustee has to bring an action, that doesn't mean, I don't 6 think, and I don't see anything in the opinion that suggests 7 that if there's a disagreement between the debtor-in-8 possession and certain creditors about whether an action 9 should be brought, that automatically a trustee should be 10 appointed. There needs to be cause found.

11 Section 1104 still exists and there's a body of law
12 under Section 1104 that requires a court to make a 13 determination whether there are grounds for appointment of a 14 trustee, either under the first prong, the gross 15 mismanagement, incompetence, dereliction of duty prong, or, 16 alternatively, the best interests of creditors. So that all 17 of these factors that are discussed about the potential 18 effects of the financing and so on and so forth are all 19 factors that the Court would need to address in determining 20 under Section 1104 whether grounds exist to appoint a 21 trustee.

22 Does that mean if the Court determines that grounds 23 do not exist, that if it would not be in the interest of the 24 creditors to appoint a trustee, does that mean potentially 25 there might not be a plaintiff to bring this suit? That's

1 one of the factors to be considered. But ultimately a party
2 would have to file a motion and I guess it would be the 3 current plaintiff committees who would file the motion to 4 appoint a trustee, and they would set forth their arguments 5 as to why a trustee should be appointed, why it would be in 6 the best interests of creditors for a trustee to be 7 appointed so that this action can go forward, and they would 8 argue that there are ways to protect or ameliorate these 9 potential consequences and that the benefits outweigh the 10 risks.

11 That would be what the Court would be asked to 12 consider. I'm not asking, because I don't think that the 13 Circuit's opinion suggests that appointment of a trustee 14 should be automatic. I don't think the Circuit even 15 contemplates that if there is a difference of opinion 16 between the debtor-in-possession and creditors about whether 17 to bring a suit, that automatically a trustee should be 18 appointed, automatically the suit should be brought.

19 THE COURT: Do you think that -- you're experienced 20 in bankruptcy matters. I'm the new guy on the block. Was 21 there some overriding concern of the Third Circuit in 22 arriving at the Cybergenics opinion in the manner in which 23 they did?

24 MR. PURCH: Your Honor, I am very, very reluctant 25 to try and tackle that question because it puts me in the

1 situation of trying to do what I said I was reluctant to do,
2 which is to get into the minds of the judges.

3 THE COURT: Okay.

4 MR. PURCH: But clearly they felt some concern.

5 Well, they felt some concern about the statute being 6 interpreted in a consistent way and, obviously, they 7 believed that one could correspond the words in 506(a) to 8 the words in 544(b). That's the decision they made in a 9 certain sense if it --

10 THE COURT: Was there a potential, the potential 11 concern that perhaps the bringing of fraudulent conveyance 12 actions by committees was abused?

13 MR. PURCH: Since, once again, I'm not privy to the 14 briefs or the arguments before Cybergenics, I don't want to 15 really speculate as to whether that was one of the arguments
16 raised. I don't know if that was something that anybody 17 else here is more familiar with.

18 As a matter of fact, my colleague from the New 19 Jersey office might even be able to whisper something in my 20 ear about that, I don't know, but Cybergenics being the case 21 that originated in New Jersey, it's not a case that 22 originated in Wilmington, so, I'm not directly familiar with 23 the proceedings below.

24 THE COURT: I'm really not talking about 25 Cybergenics in particular. I'm talking about bankruptcy.

1 You've been counsel to the U.S. Trustee for a period of 2 time.

3 MR. PURCH: Three years.

4 THE COURT: In your three years you've seen many 5 committee actions brought alleging fraudulent conveyance.
6 True?

7 MR. PURCH: I've seen them and it's something that 8 generally has been relatively routine. It is in part a side 9 effect of cases taking a long time to resolve.

10 If you can get plan confirmed before the two years 11 run, you don't have to deal with the issue in this 12 unfortunate context.

13 The much more typical context, your Honor, is the 14 context that Judge Fitzgerald was faced with in 15 Owens-Corning a couple of weeks ago where there were 16 initially, although the ones that were left at the end were 17 not these, but it started out with a dispute over the usual 18 sort of thing where the debtor's reluctant to commence 19 preference actions against parties that it's continuing to 20 do business with, ongoing vendors, for the fear that it will 21 disrupt the business relationship with those vendors, and 22 what you say in Owens-Corning was somewhat of a different 23 ramification of that, where that was one of the group of 24 actions initially when the motions were first filed but then 25 later evolved to actions against certain asbestos plaintiff

1 law firms which, of course, are the constituencies with 2 which the debtor would need to negotiate to formulate a 3 plan, but it wasn't quite the same type of conflict that 4 this case creates and it's the unfortunate, unfortunate 5 situation in this case that it appears very difficult, maybe 6 impossible, to do what ultimately was the resolution of 7 Owens-Corning. The whole bullet was dodged because 8 ultimately the debtor said they could file the actions.

9 Here, unfortunately, we have a debtor saying we are 10 simply unwilling to file the action because in order to file 11 the action or take over as plaintiff in the action, we would 12 need to take a position vis-a-vis the estimation of asbestos 13 liability that is diametrically opposite to our entire 14 strategy in the case and, so, unfortunately, I have a 15 concern that as much as I might like to be here, your Honor, 16 and say do the same thing Judge Fitzgerald did in 17 Owens-Corning, direct the debtor to do it, I'm not sure that 18 if you did, they would do it, or if they did, they would do 19 a good job.

20 THE COURT: They can't do it.

21 MR. PURCH: I understand the problem. I understand 22 the problem.

23 THE COURT: The conflict would be extreme.

24 MR. PURCH: That's what makes this very unusual.

25 So, when you ask me, your Honor, to somehow take my

1 experience and relate it to this case, that's why I have a 2 problem. That's what makes this case very unusual.

3 There are disagreements in other cases but there 4 are usually ways to resolve the disagreements within the 5 context of the debtor carrying most of the laboring oar.

6 THE COURT: So, if you think we find a solution to 7 do a good job, that we can make this a semester course at 8 law school like Enron?

9 MR. PURCH: It probably is already working its way
10 into a number of professors' syllabi, I'm sure.

11 THE COURT: All right. I understand your argument.

12 MR. PURCH: 'And just one last point, your Honor, 13 with respect to the concept of a declaratory judgment 14 action, is that --

15 THE COURT: We just put that out. We wanted a 16 dialogue here today. Okay. I have a concern about a case 17 in controversy. Okay.

18 MR. PURCH: I'll just stand on my papers as far as 19 the concerns that we have about that action. Thank you very 20 much, your Honor.

21 THE COURT: Thank you. Mr. Friedman, I call on you
22 next, or Mr. Inselbuch.

23 MR. FRIEDMAN: I'll defer to the committees, I 24 think, to present each of our arguments, if that's all 25 right.

1 THE COURT: All right. Mr. Baena.

2 MR. BAENA. May it please the Court, Scott Baena on 3 behalf of the Asbestos Property Damage Committee. Your 4 Honor, I'm going first because Mr. Inselbuch is on a diet.
5 He needs to recover a little bit of strength before he gets 6 up here.

7 THE COURT: I thought maybe you were going before
8 Mr. Inselbuch because you've got an early plane back to Boca 9 Raton.

10 MR. BAENA: No, sir. I'm not leaving until he 11 speaks.

12 THE COURT: I think that's wise.

13 MR. BAENA: Your Honor, given the choice between 14 receiving the Cybergenics opinion a week before the trial or 15 a week after the trial, as bad as the opinion was, in our 16 opinion, I rather have received it when we did so that we 17 can confront the problem that it does present.

18 I will tell you that having just returned from the 19 national conference of bankruptcy judges, I've yet to hear a 20 bankruptcy judge or practitioner have anything good to say 21 about the opinion and its implications in the practice of 22 bankruptcy law, so, everybody is watching and everybody is 23 very curious about what we're going to do here.

24 I would like to use this time, Judge, to cover two 25 things just a briefly. First of all, address the proposed

1 case management order short of the declaratory judgment 2 issue that you have already raised and, secondly, offer some 3 other suggestions and observations that the Court might wish 4 to take under consideration.

5 Judge, we ruminated about the Court's proposal long 6 and hard and don't easily come to be critics of anything the 7 Court proposes, but we do think that there are several 8 infirmities with the proposal, not the least of which is 9 that it directly contradicts Cybergenics, and if what we do 10 here is an effort to overcome Cybergenics or live within its 11 strictures, I think the case management proposal, in all due 12 respect, sets us in the wrong direction.

13 The notion that the committees at the outset could 14 be sued is directly inconsistent with the express remarks of 15 the Third Circuit.

16 THE COURT: Well, they could be sued but their 17 capacity to sue as a counterclaimant and as a third-party
18 plaintiff against Sealed Air is problematic.

19 MR. BAENA: Is problematic, and even being sued, 20 Judge --

21 THE COURT: But we got you thinking, didn't we?

22 MR. BAENA: Yes, very provocative.

23 THE COURT: I wanted a dialogue to hear.

24 MR. BAENA: Just to finish that thought, though, the 25 only authority I'm familiar with for committees being sued

1 is when they've breached their fiduciary duty, not in 2 whether to promote some sort of cause of action.

3 THE COURT: Mr. Bernick would love to sue you.

4 MR. BAENA: I'm sure he would. And I think Mr.
5 Purch makes another good point in his response to the effect 6 that the relief that we would be seeking exceeds the kind of 7 relief that could be granted in the construct of the 8 proposed case management order because we want them out 9 of --

10 THE COURT: Well, there would have to be a second 11 count.

12 MR. BAENA: There would have to be a second count 13 and then we get into a whole new slippery slope.

14 THE COURT: If there were a fraudulent conveyance, 15 then you get a limited judgment, I understand.

16 MR. BAENA: So, we start from that point, your 17 Honor, with some further observations and suggestions. The 18 points you made at the beginning of this hearing regarding 19 the sense of urgency that we ought to have because of the 20 time and the expense that all have gone to in order to 21 promote this case and the importance of this case are 22 poignant for a number of reasons but, most importantly, 23 because that is, when synthesized, an expression of this 24 case represents something that needs to be done in the best 25 interests of this estate.

1 We are past a point where it's even apparently 2 debated by any side that the prosecution of this case is 3 undoubtedly in the best interests of this estate.

4 Just this week we received a pleading from the 5 Equity Committee which recognizes in its papers that there 6 has already been a determination that this litigation is in 7 the best interests of this estate. Given that there doesn't 8 appear to be any reasonable disagreement about that fact, 9 it's very easy for us to conclude that this litigation needs 10 to go forward and there are, looking at this through 11 absolute rose-colored glasses, if you will, there are really 12 two ways that we know that we can proceed listening to the 13 Court in Cybergenics.

14 The first is that the debtor brings this cause of 15 action and if the debtor doesn't, the trustee gets 16 appointed. We know that those are unassailable.

17 THE COURT: The debtor can't bring it in this case.

18 MR. BAENA: The debtor can't bring it, but if the 19 debtor doesn't bring it, it only has one other choice and, 20 that is, to not be involved. Cybergenics isn't all black 21 crepe for us. There's a positive side to Cybergenics. It's 22 hard to find, but the positive aspect of Cybergenics is that 23 it promotes the same judicial philosophy as the Supreme 24 Court did in the Weintraub case when it talked about the 25 fiduciary duties of debtor, and when you have already

1 concluded, and there doesn't appear to be any reasonable 2 dispute about it, that this litigation is in the best 3 interests of this estate, then it is inescapable to not 4 conclude that the debtor has a fiduciary duty to pursue this 5 litigation. And if the debtor refuses to do so, Cybergenics
6 tells us there's one path we can take. We can appoint a 7 trustee. But implicit in that is the debtor can't be on 8 both sides of this equation. The debtor has to be out of 9 this litigation. Kirkland & Ellis cannot be in this 10 litigation. Those are immutable principles that come out of 11 Weintraub.

12 THE COURT: What would you say if the debtor-in-13 possession said, all right, listen, we've read Cybergenics
14 and we understand what the options are. Judge, if you 15 remember, we made an application to you to vacate our 16 intervention. Vacate our intervention and we'll now bring 17 the action against Sealed Air, as unappealing as it may be.
18 What if they do that?

19 MR. BAENA: That's why even the Third Circuit 20 starting with Marin says there's an absolute right of the 21 committees to intervene, to be sure that that --

22 THE COURT: Fine.

23 MR. BAENA: -- action is prosecuted appropriately.

24 THE COURT: We're not talking about your right to 25 intervene. Your right to intervene is clearly established.

1 But it's your capacity to sue and initiate that Cybergenics 2 attacks.

3 Now, Mr. Bernick, on behalf of Grace, says, okay,
4 hey, listen, I read Cybergenics the way you all do and I
5 spoke to my clients and we reconsidered, Judge. We want you 6 to terminate our intervention and as the debtor-in-7 possession we are going to bring this action and we know 8 that the committees are going to be here, they're going to 9 intervene and they're going to keep us honest and pursue the 10 case.

11 MR. BAENA: I could live with that.

12 THE COURT: You could live with that?

13 MR. BAENA: But it changes the whole landscape of 14 this case.

15 THE COURT: Why?

16 MR. BAENA: It changes the whole landscape of this 17 case because --

18 THE COURT: Tell me how.

19 MR. BAENA: -- their witnesses now become the 20 estate's witnesses.

21 THE COURT: Their witnesses?

22 MR. BAENA: Yes. They promoted witnesses to 23 testify in defense of the claims against Sealed Air.

24 THE COURT: Okay.

25 MR. BAENA: Those witnesses are now our witnesses.

1 THE COURT: Well, let's assume, you know, I can't 2 speak for Mr. Bernick, he's his own bright light. Right, 3 Mr. Bernick? He determines that, okay, he's going to bring 4 it, and then he sits down with you and Mr. Friedman and Mr.
5 Inselbuch and he says, hey, guys, I brought the action.
6 Okay. It says here fraudulent conveyance, whatever, and he 7 stands up on the day of trial and says, I yield my time to 8 Mr. Friedman and the committees. Okay. I'm not calling any 9 witnesses. All right?

10 Of course, we haven't heard from Mr. Wasserstein 11 over there, who's going to say conflict of interest. We 12 shared our litigation strategy with him. We relied upon him 13 that he was going to make certain presentations. Now we 14 need 640 days to work it out.

15 MR. BAENA: Judge, Mr. Bernick is out of this 16 litigation. There is no way to hypothesize a scenario where 17 Mr. Bernick and Kirkland & Ellis can be --

18 THE COURT: You just told me that if I read 19 Cybergenics, I can have the debtor-in-possession bring the 20 action. He now says I'm going to bring it.

21 MR. BAENA: I didn't say he could bring the action.
22 The estate can bring this action.

23 THE COURT: Grace.

24 MR. BAENA: Grace can bring this action, yes.
25 Cybergenics says they absolutely have the right to bring the

1 action.

2 THE COURT: So, Grace terminates Kirkland & Ellis
3 and in walks ABC, and they bring the action on behalf of 4 Grace -- right -- as debtor-in-possession?

5 MR. BAENA: You may well have counsel that's able 6 to prosecute this claim already involved in this case.

7 THE COURT: Well, there is counsel in here who can 8 prosecute the case. What do you get by knocking Kirkland &
9 Ellis out if they decided that they're going to represent 10 the debtor-in-possession?

11 MR. BAENA: Judge, you know, I don't know how to 12 quantify what I get out of it.

13 THE COURT: Don't quantify. Just articulate it.

14 MR. BAENA: Your Honor, what I do is disabuse this 15 case of the conflicts that they have created by virtue of 16 their failure to comply with their fiduciary duty in 17 bringing this case in the first place or stepping aside.

18 THE COURT: What if the -- you know, you discount 19 the fact, you know, I make no findings at this point that 20 they believe they entered into a bona fide transaction for 21 an equivalent value and that they were solvent at the time.

22 Now comes down Cybergenics and they say, hum,
23 notwithstanding what we said, we understand our obligation 24 to the estate so we're going to be Boy Scouts, we're going 25 to bring the action.

1 MR. BAENA: Judge, the unfortunate part --

2 THE COURT: What are you going to do? Now we got 3 Mr. Bernick prosecuting the action, and on the first day of 4 trial I say, Mr. Bernick, you may proceed. He says, Judge, 5 I yield my time to Mr. Baena.

6 MR. BAENA: Respectfully, your Honor, the problem
7 is that we got into these ski bindings when we allowed them 8 to intervene in the first place. That was something that 9 they shouldn't have been allowed to do.

10 THE COURT: How can I keep them out? How can I 11 keep them out? You know, if you remember, I kept them out 12 the first time.

13 MR. BAENA: They had a fiduciary duty not to come 14 in. It would be a breach of their fiduciary duty to 15 participate in this litigation by aligning themselves with 16 the transferee. That's what all the case law tells you, 17 right through Cybergenics.

18 If you determine that this litigation is worth 19 prosecuting and, therefore, in the best interests of the 20 estate, they had no right to be on the other side of this 21 litigation. That was the problem.

22 THE COURT: Could we start a suit against Kirkland 23 & Ellis and recover?

24 MR. BAENA: You know, Judge, I don't take any of 25 this lightly and I don't -- I certainly don't, you know,

1 issue veiled threats, but one of the things the Court has to 2 consider --

3 THE COURT: Should Mr. Bernick be calling his 4 malpractice carrier?

5 MR. BAENA: Maybe. I'm not the right one to answer 6 that question, Judge, and maybe you ought to appoint an 7 examiner to determine that, Judge. That's what examiners 8 do.

9 THE COURT: That's what we need, another level of 10 bureaucracy in the case.

11 MR. BAENA: Judge, we're trying to work within the 12 confines of a case that defies common bankruptcy practice.
13 We're also trying to work within the confines of a statute.

14 THE COURT: We're having this exchange. If I had 15 the opportunity, if Cybergenics came down last week and we 16 were writing on a clean slate and we hadn't done the last 17 six months of getting the case ready with all the history of 18 this case, it would be a much easier problem to deal with.

19 We're on the eve of trial and out comes Cybergenics 20 and everybody is committed to position. That's the 21 difficulty about the case, you know, so, you and I can 22 engage in this colloquy and speak academics and what if.

23 MR. BAENA: And speculate about what the Third
24 Circuit is going to do en banc, and if they don't do 25 anything, what the implications are to us then, and it's 1 purely speculation.

2 But we don't have to speculate about the fact that 3 the case law makes it abundantly clear, and we're talking 4 about the United States Supreme Court, not talking about the 5 Third Circuit, that they had a fiduciary duty to pursue this 6 litigation.

7 THE COURT: All right. And they're not going to do 8 it.

9 MR. BAENA: And they're not going to do it. They 10 can't participate any longer.

11 THE COURT: And Main Street is the trustee. Right?
12 Main Street is the trustee.

13 MR. BAENA: We think, Judge, that the alternatives
14 at this point to get to a trial on December 2 are even more 15 limited than what was suggested in our papers.

16 We either leave everything the way it is, hope for 17 the best in the Third Circuit, or we reconfigure the parties
18 in the case. We know what kind of reconfiguration has to go 19 on.

20 THE COURT: There's another solution but nobody 21 ever mentions it. Right? Mr. Inselbuch just said the magic 22 word. Settlement.

23 MR. BAENA: That would be a wonderful result for 24 everyone, Judge. As you well know, we've made efforts. It 25 does seem to me, though, your Honor, that if we proceed with

1 the case in the present posture, we decide not to 2 reconfigure the parties, it is a very serious question for 3 the Court even then as to what the role of Kirkland & Ellis 4 will be and we have to focus on that.

5 And secondly, we have to leave ourselves in some 6 position of denial at the end of the day if nothing happens
7 at the Third Circuit --

8 THE COURT: Let me ask you this. If there were an 9 appeal of the Third Circuit, an expedited appeal to exclude 10 you from the confines of Cybergenics, and they said, all 11 right, you know, this case was ready, we'll make an 12 exception to this case, we'll make it prospective, however 13 they say it, why do you have to get rid of Kirkland & Ellis 14 at that point?

15 MR. BAENA: Well, who's appealing and what's on 16 appeal?

17 THE COURT: You're going to appeal.

18 MR. BAENA: Judge, I don't think I could ever take 19 an appeal that would put me in the position of having to 20 support Cybergenics.

21 THE COURT: No. You're going to take an appeal 22 that says something to the effect, A, the defense waived the 23 defense of lack of capacity to sue. You'll probably take an 24 appeal saying, you know, with all this time and money spent 25 and effort, Cybergenics should not apply to this case.

1 Okay. Why wouldn't you do that?

2 MR. BAENA: I'm not sure how we get that. You
3 enter an order, your Honor, today that says we're going 4 forward?

5 THE COURT: Oh, yes. And by the way, I set a trial
6 date and we're going forward.

7 MR. BAENA: We're going forward on December 2nd?

8 THE COURT: That's correct.

9 MR. BAENA: And everything is going to stay the way 10 it is because I perceive that there is some exception that 11 this case may fall into from Cybergenics?

12 THE COURT: Either waiver, exception, whatever the 13 case may be. Doesn't that excite your appellate juices?

14 MR. BAENA: Well, I don't know what I'm appealing.
15 What do I appeal, Judge? Do I go and say, no, I'm not 16 within an exception to Cybergenics?

17 THE COURT: You're appealing this trial date of 18 December 2nd, saying I don't want to go to a trial that may 19 cost ten million dollars and potentially minimize the estate
20 by ten million dollars, that may be monies that would accrue
21 to your constituencies. Maybe it goes to a cross appeal 22 because Mr. Wasserstein is probably going to appeal.

23 MR. BAENA: I think that that appeal, Judge, would 24 engender the plaintiffs, the present plaintiffs, saying that 25 they subscribe or Cybergenics is applicable. What you're

1 saying is it's not applicable and you're saying we ought to 2 take an appeal because we don't want to be wasteful and we'd 3 have to start that argument, the platform for that argument 4 is that Cybergenics is applicable. Then you would hear from 5 us to say that Cybergenics was correct. I can't say that.

6 THE COURT: Why can't you argue in the alternative?
7 You might not know whether Cybergenics applies to this case,
8 but if it should be construed to be retrospective as opposed 9 to prospective, then we seek that we be excluded from the 10 dictate of this opinion because of what it means to the 11 estate.

12 MR. BAENA: But you will have ruled that it was 13 excluded from the jaws of Cybergenics.

14 THE COURT: All I'm doing is establishing a trial
15 date, and I'm inviting you to take an expedited appeal, 16 mandamus me, whatever. It's not going to stop here or else 17 on December 2nd everybody be ready and we're just going to 18 go forward.

19 Maybe the U.S. Trustee will file something. I 20 don't know. I want somebody to file something.

21 MR. BAENA: I'll defer to Mr. Inselbuch. I don't 22 perceive the appeal that we could take.

23 THE COURT: Well, Mr. Inselbuch is going to tell 24 you about it.

25 MR. BAENA: Thank you. Judge, if I could just

1 remark on the practical implications of appointment of a

3 THE COURT: Sure.

4 MR. BAENA: I'm not even -- first of all, I don't 5 believe that the DIP financing order in this case provided 6 for an automatic event of default. I think there is still 7 notice and hearing required, which implies some judicial 8 discretion as to whether or not to grant relief to the 9 creditor; and, secondly, I'm not even sure that there's very 10 much money outstanding under the DIP financing in this 11 case --

12 THE COURT: I don't know.

13 MR. BAENA: -- if any. Thank you.

14 THE COURT: All right.

15 MR. INSELBUCH: Good afternoon, your Honor. Elihu 16 Inselbuch for the Personal Injury Committee. If we take the 17 syllogism that you present, you've ordered the case on for 18 trial and we try the case and it ultimately goes up on 19 appeal, the result of that trial will stand, as we look at 20 the record today, if, one, the Third Circuit were to decide 21 for some reason that Cybergenics was to be viewed 22 prospectively or for some other reason didn't apply to this 23 case, or if the Third Circuit were persuaded that the 24 parties who would be then taking an appeal had waived their 25 rights to that appeal by their conduct up to the time of 1 trial.

2 THE COURT: Or if the Third Circuit en banc vacated
3 Cybergenics.

4 MR. INSELBUCH: Yes. If there's a reversal where 5 they changed their mind, but I have to start from the risks 6 that are presented to the committee. We have to assume the 7 possibility or even the likelihood that the Third Circuit
8 will adhere to its ruling in Cybergenics. Second, that 9 there's a significant risk that it will decide that since we 10 knew well about it before we started this trial, it applies 11 to this trial; and, third --

12 THE COURT: Does it apply if the mandate hasn't 13 issued?

14 MR. INSELBUCH: I think the thinking of the Third
15 Circuit was apparent to us. I don't know that there's a lot 16 of case law that will tell me whether it applies 17 prospectively or retrospectively and whether or not it turns 18 on whether the mandate is issued. I don't know the answers 19 to that.

20 I want to address all this from the standpoint of 21 the risks that we perceive from our client's constituency 22 point of view. I have to accept the risk that I will 23 ultimately be told by the Third Circuit that we flunked
24 Cybergenics and it's a do-over.

25 Third, although I see and I agree with the U.S.

1 Trustee that there's a significant argument about waiver, I
2 see also what the Third Circuit said about waiver and it
3 turns full circle on me here, because the Third Circuit said 4 if you were really worried about this, you should have moved 5 for the appointment of a trustee and since you didn't do 6 that, you've waived that fix retroactively after the fact.

7 So, the position that I see the committees in is we 8 have to look down the road to the risk that we would lose 9 this case, we would win the case on the merits but lose the 10 case on appeal for one reason under Cybergenics, and by the 11 time that happens, it would be too late to fix it, so, we 12 need to fix it now.

13 THE COURT: Too late to fix it? Why?

14 MR. INSELBUCH: Because we will have either gone 15 past the point in time where a trustee can be appointed and 16 the two years will have run sometime I believe in April --

17 THE COURT: You don't think that would be equitably 18 tolled?

19 MR. INSELBUCH: No, sir.

20 THE COURT: Why?

21 MR. INSELBUCH: Because the Third Circuit told 22 us -- I believe what the Third Circuit is warning us in 23 Cybergenics is you know what we had to say. In fact, they 24 said to the Cybergenics litigants you knew what we said 25 beforehand and you could have fixed it by moving to appoint

1 a trustee and you didn't do it.

2 THE COURT: That's the same argument you're going 3 to make vis-a-vis opposition to Mr. Wasserstein. You're 4 going to say he waived.

5 MR. INSELBUCH: Yes, indeed. I would like to be in 6 a position to make those arguments, but I can't be assured 7 that I will prevail with them in the Third Circuit. I would 8 like to be in a position to argue why Cybergenics doesn't 9 apply to this case, and I would like to be in a position to 10 argue that Mr. Wasserstein has waived, but I can't assume 11 that I will prevail in those arguments.

12 THE COURT: Well, I invited you to do that prior to 13 December 2nd.

14 MR. INSELBUCH: Yes, but the problem with that is 15 that if your Honor rules, if your Honor proceeds on the 16 assumption or not assumption, if your Honor orders that this 17 case goes to trial and, in effect, makes a finding that 18 either Cybergenics doesn't apply or a waiver exists and, 19 thus, this case can proceed to trial in the present posture 20 of the parties, then it is not for me to appeal that.

21 I need to have the alternative route to appeal 22 because I would want to support your Honor's assertion that 23 there has been a waiver or that Cybergenics did not apply, 24 and what I think our position is --

25 THE COURT: Well, you would probably cross appeal

1 in that circumstance.

2 MR. INSELBUCH: But there's no requirement that Mr.
3 Wasserstein appeal. Even if your Honor were to certify the 4 case under 1292(b), there would still be the need for 5 somebody to take an appeal and Mr. Wasserstein could 6 determine that it's in the interest of his client not to 7 pursue the interlocutory appeal but to wait to see how the 8 trial comes out. Maybe the statute will run. Maybe two 9 years will run. Maybe something else good will happen, and 10 I assume that he would be well-advised and advise his 11 clients to do that as well.

12 So, the way I see the posture is that if your Honor 13 means it, and I'm all for it that your Honor means it, that 14 we go to trial on December 2nd, although I would ask for 15 maybe another week as a matter of personal problems.

16 THE COURT: Are you in Russia then?

17 MR. INSELBUCH: No, I'm not in Russia then but I'm 18 coming back from a prescheduled event with my grandchildren.

19 THE COURT: You really know how to hurt a judge.

20 MR. INSELBUCH: But that aside and those procedural 21 issues aside, mechanically aside, we certainly want the case
22 to go forward, but I think the way we would prefer it to go 23 forward if we could have our belts and our suspenders on, is 24 we would like a trustee appointed and the trustee to be the 25 nominal party-in-interest that takes the case forward on

1 December the 2nd.

2 THE COURT: And, therefore, if I were just going 3 one step further in this syllogistic atmosphere, if I were 4 to deny the appointment of a trustee --

5 MR. INSELBUCH: Then we would have something to 6 appeal.

7 THE COURT: -- then you would have something to 8 appeal.

9 MR. INSELBUCH: Yes, your Honor.

10 THE COURT: Got you. Do you think I need a round
11 of briefing on reasons why I should appoint a trustee? Do 12 you think we have enough here today? Mr. Purch indicated 13 all the fact-finding I'd have to do before I recommended the 14 appointment of a trustee.

15 MR. INSELBUCH: I don't think it's so much 16 briefing. Your Honor has already, in effect, I think,
17 reached the conclusion that this case should go forward 18 because even before Cybergenics, your Honor ordered that, in 19 fact, with the debtor not taking the case forward, the 20 committees do that.

21 The case, as your Honor is well aware, is very 22 large. The stakes involved are almost as large as the 23 debtor's estate to begin with, if not as large or larger 24 than the debtor's estate, and I don't know what other facts 25 your Honor would need to reach a determination under,

1 whether it's 1104, that it's in the interest of creditors
2 and even that the refusal of the debtor to bring the action 3 is improper because of the stakes involved and the 4 reasonableness of bringing the case. I don't know whether 5 you need a round of briefing on waiver, but it's seems to me
6 this Court is peculiarly knowledgeable, this is not a clean 7 slate. I would be uninformed by whether Mr. Wasserstein or 8 Mr. Bernick think you need more hearings or more briefings.

9 But what I would suggest I would see as the 10 procedural posture would be your Honor would make a finding 11 that either the case is not controlled by Cybergenics and if 12 it is, that a waiver has been made so that it can go forward 13 for the 2nd, on December 2nd.

14 THE COURT: What argument would you urge upon the 15 Court that the case is not controlled by Cybergenics?

16 MR. INSELBUCH: I don't have one, your Honor.

17 THE COURT: Thank you.

18 MR. INSELBUCH: But, your Honor, I frankly have no
19 confidence in -- I have to be candid with the Court -- I 20 have no confidence in the argument that because the mandate 21 hasn't come down or because it may yet be en banc and may be 22 another decision, that the Court should not be informed by 23 the opinion of the Third Circuit. I couldn't look you in 24 the eye and tell you that. I certainly couldn't look the 25 Third Circuit in the eye and tell them that, so, I don't

1 have any confidence in that.

2 The waiver argument I think has substantial merit
3 but, as I said --

4 THE COURT: Or to ask for relief from Cybergenics.

5 MR. INSELBUCH: Well, but the Court can't ask for 6 that relief and I don't know how we can get to ask for that 7 without something being on appeal in the Third Circuit, and 8 the way --

9 THE COURT: No, no. It's easy. Deny the trustee 10 and then you get to the Third Circuit.

11 MR. INSELBUCH: Yes, sir.

12 THE COURT: And then alternatively, you say, by the 13 way --

14 MR. INSELBUCH: Yes. And if your Honor were to 15 order the case to go forward, determining it, at least the 16 reason why the case can go forward in light of Cybergenics 17 is that there has been a waiver by the parties, and perhaps 18 Mr. Wasserstein will appeal that, perhaps he will not.

19 THE COURT: I would take it that there would be no 20 resistance on the part of certainly the committees in 21 expediting an appeal.

22 MR. INSELBUCH: Oh, no. We would much require 23 that. Otherwise, we would certainly urge that on the Court, 24 because without the ability to resolve this, hopefully even 25 before December 2nd, in the Third Circuit, we would, all of 1 us and at the estate's expense be devoting a great deal of 2 energy and effort that might be for naught.

3 THE COURT: I don't want anybody to leave here
4 thinking that I lack a genuine concern that the Third
5 Circuit should speak as to whatever we decide to do here
6 before December 2nd, rather than, you know --

7 MR. INSELBUCH: Absolutely.

8 THE COURT: -- saying mush, full speed ahead and 9 we'll all end up --

10 MR. INSELBUCH: I understood that.

11 THE COURT: -- we all end up in Gnome with nothing.

12 MR. INSELBUCH: So, the posture I see is your Honor 13 order what your Honor orders, certification on under 14 1292(b). Mr. Wasserstein may or may not appeal. We would 15 move for the appointment of a trustee. If your Honor deemed 16 that unnecessary at this time, your Honor would deny that, 17 certify that under 1292(b), and one of the two, if not both 18 of those orders, would be promptly appealed to the Third 19 Circuit.

20 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you. All right. Mr.
21 Bernick.

22 MR. FRIEDMAN: May I speak briefly? I apologize.

23 THE COURT: Suré.

24 MR. FRIEDMAN: I realize my side has been heard.

25 THE COURT: I thought you waived.

1 MR. FRIEDMAN: I deferred.

2 MR. INSELBUCH: He picks up what we miss.

3 MR. FRIEDMAN: I deferred. First, I want to say 4 that I do think that there is a good waiver argument that 5 could be made. I don't know that I need to articulate all 6 the points here now. I'm really going to look for the 7 moment at a contrary point, which is this. I think if we 8 are going to go to the Third Circuit and we are going to 9 argue waiver, and maybe we're going to argue that 10 Cybergenics shouldn't apply because it shouldn't be held 11 retroactive to a case on the eve of trial and, you know, 12 it's funny, if I were representing somebody on death row, 13 that would be a winner. Guy's ready to go to the electric 14 chair, the new law doesn't apply to him, and I've had that 15 'experience.

16 But putting that aside, when Mr. Bernick moved to 17 intervene in this case, we opposed that and we consistently 18 opposed it and we consistently took the position in opposing 19 it that it would be a breach of fiduciary duty for the 20 debtor to be on the defendant's side of the table, and so, 21 we think we have not waived in argument that even if we go 22 forward on December 2nd, and even if we go forward as this 23 case is essentially already structured, we think we are 24 going to be in a better position before the Circuit if the 25 Court's order reflects that the debtor is now going to be

1 benched on the sidelines. Assuming that your Honor is not 2 happy with the debtor on the plaintiff's side of the table, 3 I don't think even still that the debtor should be 4 continuing on as defense counsel.

5 THE COURT: It is not appropriate. Defense counsel 6 for whom?

7 MR. FRIEDMAN: On the defendant, for Grace.

8 THE COURT: Okay. Fine. Knock him out as Grace
9 counsel. Why can't Sealed Air hire him as co-counsel?

10 MR. FRIEDMAN: Because it's a conflict of interest.
11 I mean, Grace, under the Cybergenics opinion, part of the 12 point of it is what we've been saying all along and what 13 I've said many times at this hearing, who benefits
14 economically if we prevail at trial? Grace. Grace 15 logically ought to be Sealed Air's adversary.

16 There's no circumstance under which it makes sense 17 for Kirkland & Ellis to be representing the enemy or what 18 should be enemy for purposes of this trial.

19 Now, if your Honor doesn't agree with that, I
20 suppose that is something that your Honor could deny, and it 21 might be something alternative that people could think about 22 to denying a request for a trustee.

23 THE COURT: Why does it improve your position
24 vis-a-vis the issues that would be before the Third Circuit
25 to disassemble Kirkland & Ellis from this case?

1 MR. FRIEDMAN: Because in the first instance, the 2 Cybergenics opinion teaches us that the debtor-in-possession 3 or a trustee ought to be on the plaintiff's side of the 4 table. Okay. We're not doing that. We're going to go a 5 little bit outside the box and try and argue that we ought 6 to be able to proceed without the debtor at the plaintiff's 7 table. That's going to be hard enough. But to try and sell 8 the notion that the debtor ought to be on the defendant's 9 side of the table, I think, is one step beyond what may be 10 palatable, and I think we are -- it's not a perfect
11 solution. A perfect solution is debtor --

12 THE COURT: Why can't I -- you know, let's say, you 13 take an expedited appeal and the Circuit indicates that, 14 fine, the case can proceed for whatever reason, and make an 15 application to terminate Kirkland & Ellis?

16 MR. FRIEDMAN: Where? In the Third Circuit or 17 before your Honor?

18 THE COURT: Here, before the Court.

19 MR. FRIEDMAN: Well, I would think we're certainly 20 making that application now.

21 THE COURT: Okay.

22 MR. FRIEDMAN: And if it's denied, I suppose we 23 would have to appeal it.

24 THE COURT: Okay. I understand.

25 MR. FRIEDMAN: Thank you. By the way, I have a

1 copy, I can serve it on others but I happen to have an extra 2 copy of the en banc petition.

3 THE COURT: I have a copy. Thank you. Mr.
4 Bernick, you know, you sit there so quietly and everybody 5 wants to beat up on you.

6 MR. BERNICK: Well, you know, I tell you I'm very 7 accustomed to this, especially down in courtrooms in the 8 southern parts of the United States where there are all 9 kinds of implications of finger pointing, but at one point 10 in time I know I've got to get up and I get my chance, so, 11 I'm a patient guy but I practice --

12 THE COURT: So, I guess David Bernick, this is your 13 life.

14 MR. BERNICK: This is not the first time that such 15 marvelous things have been said. I won't get into it 16 further but I guess in a way it's interesting that there's 17 so much attention being focused on our role.

18 THE COURT: Isn't it great to cast a long shadow?

19 MR. BERNICK: Yes. In my particular case, I've 20 always found that could be rewarding. Look for your 21 opportunity.

22 THE COURT: My remark was not lost on you.

23 MR. BERNICK: I have some what I hope will be 24 productive comments to make and then I'd like to go to the 25 chess exercise that I think that your Honor has initiated

1 among counsel in the courtroom about, well, what if we do it
2 this way and what if we do it that way, but I think that 3 there are some concrete things that I'd like to share with 4 the Court, and let me begin with the construct that appears 5 in the proposed case management order.

6 The dec action, I don't know if this is something 7 that your Honor has decided since that time that we're not 8 going to be involved with but I think there are --

9 THE COURT: I'm concerned whether it works.

10 MR. BERNICK: I understand that. And I took it 11 that was one of the reasons why you put it out there for 12 some discussion. As you know, we did something like that in 13 the Babcock case, and in point of fact, it served a very 14 useful purpose which was that it created -- it told a story
15 to the bankruptcy court about the urgency of the proceeding 16 with that particular litigation, the importance of 17 structuring it so that it focused on the solvency issue and 18 the importance of having it remain in the bankruptcy court 19 and all those objectives were actually successfully 20 achieved.

21 The one problem that Judge Brown had, and Elihu was 22 very proud of pointing out, where he said, look, how can 23 this be merged in the process, Babcock and Wilcox, is the 24 plaintiffs saying there's no cause of action against the 25 other corporate defendants who will madly agree, then of

1 course there's no course of action. Where is the actual 2 diversity of interest? Where is the actual adversity of a 3 case in controversy? And that was a fair point.

4 Our anticipation when we filed the suit in that 5 fashion was, in fact, the committees would intervene, we 6 specifically said this, so they'll be able to come in and to 7 pursue the theories that they believe are the best theories 8 to pursue in the case.

9 With the benefit of hindsight, you might think 10 about making some modifications to the process here. First, 11 in this particular case, we do have a defendant that's not 12 part of any Grace entity, so, we could file the dec action 13 against Sealed Air, a real defendant. If we're wrong in the 14 claims that are being made, the allegations that are making 15 the declaratory judgment action, they would be bound by the 16 absolute or opposite result.

17 THE COURT: What would you allege against Sealed
18 Air?

19 MR. BERNICK: I think we would probably, and I 20 think this is something we'll get into, the question that 21 your Honor posed, which is what -- well, what if Grace 22 authorized the prosecution of the case, let me put that off 23 for a moment and assume all we're talking about is the dec 24 action that you described in the CMO.

25 We sued Sealed Air. They, of course, would madly

1 agree with everything that we are saying, but we'd also sue 2 claimants, and this is somewhat similar to what's going on 3 in the ZAI litigation right now. Remember, that's the 4 litigation that's concerned with whether, is there really a 5 scientific problem with this attic insulation and there, in 6 order that the science issue be precipitated and addressed, 7 the Court has adopted a procedure whereby we brought into 8 the case claimants for purposes of creating an adverse party 9 to then litigate this issue, so, it's Grace versus the 10 claimants on the science, and the costs of representing 11 those claimants are going to be borne by the estate.
12 There's money set aside.

13 What's the concept is you get claimants in there 14 who are actually adverse to the debtor asserting a position 15 and the case gets litigated, so, in this particular case we 16 would make these claims.

17 THE COURT: How many claimants? Nominal claimants?

18 MR. BERNICK: No. These are actual under 3004, 19 another bankruptcy rule, you can bring in -- the debtor can 20 bring claimants into this case and they are already present
21 in this case. I believe there are about 10 ZAI claimants 22 who are in the bankruptcy proceeding for that purpose. We 23 could name them and we could name other claimants John Does, 24 however you want to characterize them. They also would be 25 adverse parties.

1 At that point the committees could intervene for 2 purposes of defending against the declaratory judgment
3 allegations on behalf of those claimants and also on behalf 4 of all creditors, so, they have a real role to play. The 5 committees are not being sued. They're not initiating suit.
6 The suit has already been initiated. All the parties are 7 there. There's actual adversity between the parties.
8 Depending upon how your Honor allocates the burden of proof 9 and whatever, we can actually go forward and litigate the 10 issue. How would that stand up?

11 Number one, we, that is, Grace, would be agreeable 12 to the prosecution of that case, with only one proviso. The 13 lesson of the intervention process is fresh in our minds.
14 We are not interested in pursuing it if the pursuit of that 15 claim, in fact, would be given collateral effect in the 16 Chapter 11 case.

17 We have no problem with its being pursued for 18 purposes of prosecuting the claim against Sealed Air, we 19 will not stand in the way, we'll cooperate in the effort, 20 but it shouldn't be binding. We should not be bound with 21 respect to the Chapter 11 case for the whole litany of 22 reasons that we've set out in our papers.

23 THE COURT: Are you only concerned about the 24 Chapter 11 case or are you concerned about other 25 jurisdictions?

1 MR. BERNICK: I'm not sure what other
2 jurisdictions. The Missoula, Montana cost recovery case?

3 THE COURT: Wherever.

4 MR. BERNICK: I'm mostly focused on the Chapter 11
5 case. I'd have to think if there's something else, but that 6 was the dominant concern that we had, that this not be used
7 to gain an advantage in the Chapter 11 case. So, Grace 8 would be agreeable to entry of the CMO along those lines.

9 Number three --

10 THE COURT: And by the way, when you say not used 11 in the Chapter 11 case, you mean as a definitive proven 12 fact, not that the Court couldn't consider the same evidence 13 in arriving --

14 MR. BERNICK: Evidence, whether the evidence comes 15 in or not would be determined with a clean slate on the 16 basis of --

17 THE COURT: May very well be the same evidence.

18 MR. BERNICK: A lot of the evidence may well be the 19 same.

20 THE COURT: Okay.

21 MR. BERNICK: Also, we wouldn't want to have the 22 argument made that the fact of our making these claims or, 23 for that matter, making statements somehow is a judicial 24 admission; that is, there really is a clean slate in the 25 Chapter 11 case.

1 Number three, would this solve the Cybergenics
2 problem, and I think it probably would. In fact, I think I 3 failed to see the problem under Cybergenics for the 4 following reason:

5 It is quite clear under Cybergenics that the debtor 6 has the power to pursue these claims. Debtor has the 7 authority. We're exercising the power. We are initiating 8 the litigation.

9 THE COURT: How are you going to exercise the 10 power?

11 MR. BERNICK: By bringing the dec action.

12 THE COURT: You bring the dec action, you sue 13 Sealed Air, and what does it say vis-a-vis you and Sealed
14 Air?

15 MR. BERNICK: Under what I'm talking about now, 16 this dec action would be the same dec action set out in the 17 CMO to say this is not a fraudulent conveyance transaction.

18 THE COURT: And by the way, where do you find that 19 in the bankruptcy code that you can bring --

20 MR. BERNICK: Well, the bankruptcy code on the 21 adversary side, the adversary side of the bankruptcy code 22 adopts basically --

23 THE COURT: It says you can bring an action to set 24 aside a fraudulent conveyance. I didn't find anywhere in 25 the code where it says you can bring an action to say it's 1 not a fraudulent conveyance.

2 MR. BERNICK: Well, no. I think if it's an 3 adversary proceeding, what we're really saying is we can 4 initiate the adversary proceeding as a dec action because 5 the dec action rules would be available in the adversary 6 proceeding. The substantive right to prosecute the claim or 7 power to prosecute the claim --

8 THE COURT: Where is the case in controversy with 9 Sealed Air?

10 MR. BERNICK: The case in controversy with Sealed 11 Air is supplied by the presence of those claimants. They 12 have a real controversy with Sealed Air.

13 THE COURT: So, you have to bring the claimants in.

14 MR. BERNICK: They said what I said under this 15 scenario, you bring in both Sealed Air and the claimants.

16 THE COURT: And I take it the claimants would 17 counterclaim against Sealed Air.

18 MR. BERNICK: No. The claimants, the claimants are 19 adverse to Sealed Air. They are the beneficiaries of the 20 recovery, if there's a recovery. The claimants are there, 21 they will be there. They will be represented by the 22 committees who would intervene, and the committees would 23 assert all of the same claims, all of the same claims 24 they're pursuing now by way of the same theories they're 25 pursuing now.

1 THE COURT: What holds Sealed Air in? You file
2 this action and the following week Mr. Wasserstein, on 3 behalf of Sealed Air, files a motion to dismiss, and nobody 4 said who's going to hold him in --

5 MR. BERNICK: By that time --

6 THE COURT: -- unless the claimants file a
7 counterclaim against Sealed Air.

8 MR. BERNICK: -- the claimants would file their -- 9 either could file their own claim or the committee as an 10 intervenor would file a pleading that would make that same 11 claim.

12 THE COURT: What kind of pleading?

13 MR. BERNICK: It's the same pleading that we were 14 required to file when we got into the case.

15 THE COURT: They have no capacity to sue so they 16 can't make a claim over as against Sealed Air.

17 MR. BERNICK: They are not the ones who are -- they 18 are not exercising their power to initiate the litigation.
19 They're exercising their power which the Cybergenics court 20 recognized to be intervenors and to play a role as 21 completely commensurate with their being intervenors and as 22 intervenors they are required, as your Honor indicated, to 23 align themselves with a side and --

24 THE COURT: Well, I can align parties but I got 25 nothing to hold Mr. Wasserstein in at that point, and he

1 agrees with me.

2 MR. BERNICK: Well, I'm not sure. He's held in on 3 our dec action.

4 THE COURT: He's not held in on your dec action.

5 MR. BERNICK: Why not?

6 THE COURT: Because you're in agreement, you're in 7 agreement it was not a fraudulent conveyance and he says
8 goody, goody, it was not a fraudulent conveyance. Judge, 9 what am I doing here?

10 MR. BERNICK: But if there's a case in controversy, 11 he's still a party.

12 THE COURT: Where is the case in controversy?

13 MR. BERNICK: The case is controversy is actually 14 supplied in a number of different ways. It's supplied by 15 our reciting, as we did in Babcock, that this is an issue
16 that must be resolved as having an impact on the Chapter 11 17 case. If you can satisfy a case in controversy without 18 having a traditional plaintiff versus defendant situation, 19 that's what declaratory judgment actions are all about.

20 THE COURT: Let's say we try this case and it goes 21 up on appeal. How do you think the Third Circuit would look 22 at this case? Would they say it's odoriferous?

23 MR. BERNICK: I think that, in point of fact, the 24 Third Circuit in looking at this would say that this is 25 actually a reasonable way of solving what is a difficult

1 problem in our case. The difficult problem in our case is,
2 I intended to get to this in a little bit but it is 3 appropriate now, your Honor referred to conflict of 4 interest. They like to talk about conflict of interest.
5 This is not a conflict of interest. This is not a situation 6 where Grace doesn't want to sue somebody of its own who's on 7 the other side of the "V".

8 The people on the other side of the "V" are Sealed
9 Air. There's no issue or reluctance to sue Sealed Air 10 because in some fashion we do business with Sealed Air.

11 The reason that there's a conflict is that there's 12 a conflict between competing strategies for how to pursue
13 the Chapter 11 case. Grace made a judgment. Grace's 14 judgment as the primary issue in the Chapter 11 case is 15 defining its tort liability. That's the dog. That's not 16 the tail. That's the primary concern in the case.

17 Grace further determined that if this case were 18 initiated, it would not have a lot of merit and it 19 threatened to create an advantage or compromise the process 20 in the Chapter 11 case. That's why we didn't pursue it.

21 Now, those are both judgments. They're judgments 22 that recognize what the Grace case is all about, which is 23 defining tort liability.

24 Now, others may make that judgment differently from 25 us, but there's no conflict of interest to making that

1 judgment. It's our assessment that the key issue is the 2 tort liability. It can only be determined properly in the 3 Chapter 11 case. The fraudulent conveyance claim threatens 4 to compromise the integrity of that proceeding. That's how 5 they want to use the fraudulent conveyance litigation.
6 That's what gives rise to the problem, and under those 7 circumstances, this fix, that is, that we initiate a 8 declaratory judgment action so that the issue of was there a 9 fraudulent conveyance does get precipitated with our power 10 and authority, we have the power and authority to do this 11 and we're exercising it is a perfectly reasonable solution.

12 THE COURT: If there were no Cybergenics, we would 13 not be resorting to consideration of that stratagem. We 14 would now be in the second week of trial with you aligned 15 with the defendant.

16 MR. BERNICK: That's correct. That's correct.
17 This is a way of being able to pursue exactly the same 18 scenario but in compliance with Cybergenics, and what's the 19 key differentiating factor with Cybergenics is the debtor
20 agrees to the prosecution of the litigation. The debtor 21 agrees we are initiating this process. That is the big 22 difference with Cybergenics. And the twist of doing it as a 23 dec action is only there because of the particular nature of 24 our case, whereas this tension between the Chapter 11
25 strategy and what we do in connection with the fraudulent

1 conveyance case, that is the only thing that requires that 2 you have a dec action, and that really highlights a very 3 important feature.

4 THE COURT: By the way, why do you even have to, in 5 your dec action, sue Sealed Air? Why don't you just sue the 6 claimants and let the claimants worry about Sealed Air and 7 getting them in?

8 MR. BERNICK: But that really is the essence of 9 what is going to carry all my remarks here.

10 THE COURT: Why bother to sue Sealed Air? Why not 11 sue the claimants?

12 MR. BERNICK: Because Sealed Air ultimately has got 13 to be bound in the --

14 THE COURT: Well, the claimants are going to bring 15 Sealed Air in.

16 MR. BERNICK: Well, I don't know that the claimants
17 themselves can bring Sealed Air in because at that point, 18 how do the claimants get into the case?

19 THE COURT: You sued them.

20 MR. BERNICK: We sued the claimants. They then --

21 THE COURT: You said to the claimants, by the way,
22 there's an allegation that we engaged in a fraudulent 23 conveyance. You're the claimants out there. You're the 24 people that are going to benefit. You're the people who 25 allege you were deprived of the benefits of what should have

1 been the estate as a result of this fraudulent conveyance 2 and, so, therefore, there's a case in controversy between 3 you and the claimants.

4 The claimants say, well, you know, it's not a full 5 test unless we get Sealed Air in there, so, they either
6 bring a third party action and they bring in Sealed Air, 7 claimants become a third party plaintiff. You know, your 8 suing Sealed Air doesn't do anything.

9 MR. BERNICK: What it does, your Honor, is that it 10 is the debtor exercising the very power that the 11 Cybergenics -- what the Cybergenics court recognized was 12 critical, which is that we are initiating the litigation, 13 and that carries through all of what we're proposing to the 14 Court today, is that in contrast to the Cybergenics case, 15 the debtor is prepared to have this litigation initiated.

16 Our concern is not with the prosecution of the 17 case. We're prepared to authorize the prosecution of the 18 case. We have always been prepared to have this case 19 proceed, and I want to get back to the waiver point towards 20 the end of my remarks.

21 The issue is not whether the case proceeds. The 22 issue is whether an advantage is gained from it for purposes
23 of a Chapter 11 case, so, whatever power the debtor has here
24 under the code under Cybergenics, we're prepared to see 25 deployed towards the initiation of this litigation, and that

1 brings me to the second and third options here, which are 2 the examiner and the limited trustee.

3 With the examiner, there obviously is clear 4 precedent for appointment of an examiner. In particular, to 5 deal with this type of claim, PWS Holding case and also Kean 6 case, in both cases the examiner was appointed. It's 7 consistent with the code, Section 1106(b), that sets out 8 specifically that an examiner can be appointed and can 9 assume other duties of the trustee.

10 Is there a Cybergenics problem if an examiner is 11 appointed for that purpose? I don't know what it would be.
12 Cybergenics says read the code. If you comply with the 13 code, you're okay.

14 In this particular case, the code is quite clear, 15 and it's been read in exactly that same fashion.

16 THE COURT: Cybergenics didn't provide for an 17 examiner or a limited trustee.

18 MR. BERNICK: It didn't have to. The matters were 19 not before it, as your Honor pointed out earlier on this 20 afternoon. All Cybergenics said is read the code. The 21 power has to be granted. It has to be granted. The way it 22 was granted was to a trustee and to the debtor, 23 debtor-in-possession.

24 What's an examiner? An examiner is given under the 25 code 1106(b) the authority of the trustee or the authority

1 of the debtor-in-possession. So, the matter wasn't before 2 the Court in the Third Circuit. It's totally called for 3 under the code. There's not a single case that says that 4 you can't do it, and it would be particularly clear that 5 there was compliance with Cybergenics if we were to agree, 6 the debtor were to agree to the appointment of an examiner.
7 And that's my second comment and perhaps contribution.

8 THE COURT: If an examiner were appointed, would 9 the examiner have to hire counsel?

10 MR. BERNICK: I don't think that the examiner would 11 have to hire counsel. I think that the examiner probably 12 could use -- well, what the examiner ought to do is the 13 examiner ought, first of all, to conduct an investigation to 14 see whether the claims --

15 THE COURT: That's what examiners do.

16 MR. BERNICK: Right.

17 THE COURT: How long is that examination going to 18 take?

19 MR. BERNICK: I wouldn't think that examination 20 would take overly long here. I mean, let me get to the 21 bottom line. I believe that if you had an examiner here in 22 a very short period of time --

23 THE COURT: Quantify short. I don't understand.

24 MR. BERNICK: Well, I don't know. Two weeks.

25 THE COURT: Two weeks?

1 MR. BERNICK: Sure. All the information is 2 available.

3 THE COURT: Okay. And the examiner then says, hum,
4 I think that this should proceed. What happens next?

5 MR. BERNICK: I know that if the examiner were to 6 decide the case could proceed, under those circumstances I
7 don't know why they couldn't use the Milberg firm.

8 THE COURT: So, the examiner would then have to 9 hire the Milberg firm?

10 MR. BERNICK: Could hire the Milberg firm, 11 presumably would.

12 THE COURT: Maybe the committees would object to 13 that.

14 MR. BERNICK: Maybe they would. I doubt that they 15 would. I suspect that they would want to intervene in the 16 process as they already have and help out with the 17 prosecution of the claim. The Milberg firm could not serve 18 as counsel to --

19 THE COURT: To the committees.

20 MR. BERNICK: -- as counsel to the examiner if they 21 represent any adverse interest, I think is how the rule 22 reads.

23 THE COURT: So, what are you suggesting, appoint an 24 examiner as a lawyer who will appear pro se?

25 MR. BERNICK: Or you appoint a lawyer who's an

1 examiner and probably in the first instance acts to talk 2 with the Milberg firm and find out what facts have been 3 developed.

4 THE COURT: What if I thought it was better for the 5 case and, by the way, it's not my appointment, it's I
6 believe the U.S. Trustee's appointment, maybe I have a veto, 7 I'm not quite sure, and they decided that some Wall Street 8 person should be the examiner? As a matter of business, the 9 Wall Street person is then going to have to hire an 10 attorney, who then is going to have to come up to speed.
11 Now we have two more people.

12 MR. BERNICK: All depends. I suppose you're 13 correct, there's a way in which you can foresee that the 14 implementation would be cumbersome, would take too much 15 time. I don't know that that's a given. I think while all 16 this has to be recommended by the U.S. Trustee's office --

17 THE COURT: Potentially it could cost the debtor's 18 estate an additional 20 million dollars.

19 MR. BERNICK: Well, I think that really depends 20 upon how this role is defined. I think that your Honor has 21 the ability to define exactly what that role is. It may be 22 that the appointment itself has got to be on recommendation 23 from the U.S. Trustee but defining what the role is is up to 24 the Court.

25 THE COURT: I understand that, but I don't believe

1 I have the appointment. I say appoint an examiner but they 2 choose the examiner.

3 MR. BERNICK: I think they make -- Mr. Purch, I'm 4 sure, will correct me if I'm wrong -- I think they make a 5 recommendation with regard to the appointment.

6 THE COURT: I understand I have a veto.

7 MR. BERNICK: Yes. But under this scenario,
8 compliance with Cybergeneics would be quite clear, 9 particularly if we were initiating this process. We're 10 using our power as the debtor-in-possession, which is 11 recognized in the case, we're saying let's have an examiner 12 do it, which we're also entitled to do and the code provides 13 for and the case could go forward.

14 What's more, we are agreeable to this with the one 15 proviso, which is that not have the collateral impact on the 16 Chapter 11 case. If the case were to proceed on that basis 17 to get to all these claims and issues about the role that 18 our firm would play and the role that Grace would play in 19 the process, I don't know that it's important to have Grace
20 play a part in the process. I don't know if it's important 21 to have our firm play a part in our process.

22 At that point you've got an examiner. Time has now 23 passed so presumably the trial can still go forward with 24 Sealed Air. We're open to other ideas to facilitate it but 25 I don't view it as critical that we participate in the 1 process.

2 Indeed, the whole purpose in the way is to get the 3 examiner to prosecute the claim on behalf of the estate, so, 4 we would agree the examiner prosecute the claim on behalf of 5 the estate.

6 Same kind of remarks with respect to the limited 7 trustee. The limited trustee, the only thing I heard that 8 I've heard against the idea of a limited trustee is in 9 argument from the U.S. Trustee that says, gee, somehow that 10 role seems to be inconsistent with other provisions in the 11 code. There's no case that says that and there are a number 12 of cases that do recognize the possibility of having a 13 limited trustee.

14 THE COURT: Only for purpose of litigation.

15 MR. BERNICK: Only for purposes of litigating this 16 claim.

17 THE COURT: This claim.

18 MR. BERNICK: This claim.

19 THE COURT: And let's assume management of W. R.
20 Grace is unhappy with the way that the limited trustee is 21 pursuing the claim or taking certain actions, how do I 22 resolve the conflict that may arise between management and 23 the limited trustee?

24 MR. BERNICK: I think that, again, this all comes 25 down to how that role is defined to begin with, depending

1 upon how it's defined.

2 THE COURT: By the way, do I have to bond that
3 limited trustee?

4 MR. BERNICK: I don't know the answer to that 5 question but the question that your Honor has raised about 6 the way in which those powers are exercised I think really 7 comes back to a question of how the power is defined to 8 begin with.

9 We are agreeable to the point of a limited trustee, 10 subject to some of the provisos that I talked about. You 11 have to work out what the scope is, that is, the prosecution
12 of the claims against Sealed Air. You'd have to work out 13 the impact on the Chapter 11 case, which I think is fairly 14 straightforward. And you also have to address the question 15 of privileges, which I think largely has already been done 16 by Judge Dreier.

17 Judge Dreier already did some pretty good line
18 drawing on what work product and what attorney-client
19 communications would be within the scope of the fraudulent
20 conveyance action, and I think that that probably has done 21 most of the work or maybe a couple other refinements, but 22 probably has done most of the work.

23 THE COURT: Well, if you were to withdraw from the 24 case voluntarily, then I take it there are no privilege 25 problems remaining.

1 MR. BERNICK: No, that's not quite right. If we 2 were to withdraw from the fraudulent conveyance case, we 3 would want to make sure that the privileges that the client
4 has with respect to matters that pertain to the Chapter 11
5 case are preserved, and that's exactly where Judge Dreier
6 did some line drawing, saying this comes in on fraudulent 7 conveyance, this does not.

8 THE COURT: By the way, I just raised this now. I
9 haven't given any thought to it. Could you withdraw,
10 Kirkland & Ellis withdraw from the fraudulent conveyance
11 case and still remain as Chapter 11 counsel?

12 MR. BERNICK: I don't see what the impediment would 13 be.

14 THE COURT: I'm asking. I don't know the answer.

15 MR. BERNICK: No. I mean there are adversary
16 proceedings in which there are limitations on what Chapter 17 11 counsel can do. We've had them in other cases. We have 18 this issue in the Babcock case, because there was a 19 potential claim against another client of mine, a tobacco 20 company, and the issue was raised because the estate had a 21 potential claim against a tobacco company, and we defended
22 that tobacco company in another litigation. Was there a 23 problem, and the way we handled that from the very outset of 24 the case in our application was to carve out that role, that 25 is, the pursuit of that claim, and give it to other counsel

1 while there was a challenge.

2 THE COURT: If you withdraw from the Chapter 11 and 3 the case proceeded without you and Grace remained passive --

4 MR. BERNICK: You mean withdraw from the Chapter 11
5 or fraudulent --

6 THE COURT: From the fraudulent conveyance, and 7 Grace taking a passive position, wouldn't your fears of 8 collateral estoppel or however you want to phrase them in 9 the Chapter 11 case be mitigated, ameliorated, eliminated?

10 MR. BERNICK: No. They would potentially be in two 11 ways but subject to two problems. One is that the argument 12 will be made that it is to their advantage to try to use the 13 fraudulent conveyance case to affect the litigation in 14 Chapter 11, so, what they will say is, well, that's great.
15 Grace has now agreed that there can be another 16 representative, a limited trustee or an examiner. That 17 other representative now takes on the role of Grace.

18 THE COURT: No, no. You're not following me.

19 MR. BERNICK: I'm sorry.

20 THE COURT: Forget what they say at this point. If 21 you were to determine that, you know, maybe it's better that 22 Kirkland & Ellis not bring this action, debtor-in-possession 23 not bring the action, Kirkland & Ellis remove itself from 24 the fraudulent conveyance case. The case will proceed.
25 Assume that the Circuit finds either a waiver against Mr.

1 Wasserstein, potentially against Grace, the case proceeds,
2 Grace does nothing. You go back to Chicago. Mr.
3 Wasserstein carries his own water, what concerns will you
4 then have in the Chapter 11? You're not here.

5 MR. BERNICK: I don't think that we would.

6 THE COURT: Maybe that's a solution.

7 MR. BERNICK: Maybe that's a solution. That's, in 8 essence --

9 THE COURT: I mean, I'm not pushing you out of the 10 case and I'm not telling you how you should comport 11 yourself, but that's a solution.

12 MR. BERNICK: I only had a couple other remarks, 13 and I know I've been up here for a while, so, I'll sit down 14 very promptly.

15 On a plenary trustee, I don't know that the merits
16 of this idea are really even actually before the Court.

17 THE COURT: I have concern about it. I'll just say 18 that.

19 MR. BERNICK: Okay. If it is, we are prepared to 20 submit a brief to the Court, and we corresponded with the 21 Court about that last week. I know some others did make 22 written submissions. I'm assuming that's just because they 23 went ahead and made them; but if the Court wants to, we 24 would like to have the opportunity to submit a brief to the 25 Court on these matters and are prepared to do so today.

1 THE COURT: Everything is before the Court. Every 2 issue is before the Court. The Court will then distill what 3 it's going to do and if you want to file a brief promptly, 4 go ahead.

5 MR. BERNICK: Okay. The last remark that I'll make 6 has to do with this timing, chess game that your Honor has 7 kind of set up a little bit. As I hear it, I mean, it all 8 sounds very, very complicated, possible permutation and 9 maybe also that there are things I just don't know that your 10 Honor knows about how the Third Circuit will proceed from 11 the timing point of view, but it does seem to me kind of a 12 stretch to operate on the presumption that if an appeal is 13 taken from some order of this Court, that there can be an 14 appeal that is expedited so fast that we really do have some 15 level of certainty by December 2nd.

16 THE COURT: Why not? They did the Torricelli
17 matter in two weeks.

18 MR. BERNICK: I don't know about the Torricelli
19 matter. That's why maybe the observation, maybe your Honor 20 knows things that I don't.

21 THE COURT: And potentially that was only a 15
22 million dollar case.

23 MR. BERNICK: Okay. There was also a matter of --

24 THE COURT: And by the way, the Supreme Court
25 denied cert in what, three days? Okay.

1 MR. BERNICK: As I said, maybe --

2 THE COURT: Supreme Court of New Jersey acted in a 3 day and a half.

4 MR. BERNICK: Less surprising to me.

5 THE COURT: And by the way, if the Third Circuit
6 believes that I set an inopportune trial date, they'll tell 7 me. They can issue a stay.

8 MR. BERNICK: What I was going to get to is that 9 whatever goes up to the Third Circuit ought to go up in a 10 meaningful fashion and some of the observations that are 11 made, if all we're doing is to move to appoint a trustee so 12 it can then be denied so we can then take an appeal and that 13 can be up on appeal, it seems to me what I would 14 respectfully submit to the Court is that the Court -- 15 there's obviously a waiver argument. I'm not going to 16 comment on the strengths of that argument unless your Honor 17 wants me to, but apart from the waiver argument, there's a 18 complicated question of how to deal with Cybergenics, 19 assuming that Cybergenics holds that it's there, it's not 20 turned around in a regular en banc, how do you deal with it, 21 and that we ought to craft the best way for this case to 22 deal with Cybergenics.

23 THE COURT: Could we deal with Cybergenics by 24 consent of all parties saying that for purposes of this 25 case, Cybergenics does not apply? Everybody consent?

1 MR. BERNICK: I think if you proceeded by consent,
2 at least language in Cybergenics --

3 THE COURT: Do I have your consent?

4 MR. BERNICK: You have my consent on no less than 5 three different possible options.

6 THE COURT: How about what I just proffered?

7 MR. BERNICK: Just it has absolutely no effect and 8 we go forward and try the case?

9 THE COURT: No. We still give you to December 2nd.

10 MR. BERNICK: Okay. Well --

11 THE COURT: Or the 9th, whatever.

12 MR. BERNICK: I would also agree to that, but I
13 kind of like the last twist best, which is that on December 14 2nd, you all can go forward and we'll go work on other 15 things.

16 THE COURT: And let you out.

17 MR. BERNICK: Just cut us out.

18 THE COURT: And you're not going to go over to the 19 Sealed Air side?

20 MR. BERNICK: I wouldn't go over to the Sealed Air 21 side.

22 THE COURT: Well, they think you're there now. But 23 we have this famous surgeon out in Los Angeles who can 24 separate you from the hip. Right?

25 MR. BERNICK: I'm not sure that the joinder is 1 quite that difficult.

2 MR. INSELBUCH: We consent.

3 THE COURT: We haven't heard from Mr. Wasserstein
4 yet. Mr. Wasserstein, always a pleasure. I may not like 5 what you say but I'll defend to the death to permit you to 6 say it.

7 MR. WASSERSTEIN: Thank you, your Honor. First,
8 if it please the Court, I'd like to discuss the waiver
9 issue, and we called your Honor and asked about submitting a 10 brief and we were told not to do so and so we didn't. If 11 your Honor thinks it appropriate, we would like to submit a 12 brief with regard to the waiver issue by the end of the day 13 tomorrow.

14 THE COURT: Yes. I do want that, and the reason 15 that I said don't submit something, I really wanted to hold 16 this discussion. You know, I don't look at this as an 17 argument here today. We're having a discussion and we're 18 talking about a lot of different permutations to solve a 19 very difficult problem, and if and when this matter goes to 20 the Third Circuit on an expedited basis, I believe it's 21 instructive for them to read a transcript such as this to 22 understand the real-world problems that arise from matters 23 of statutory constructs.

24 MR. WASSERSTEIN: Understood, your Honor. With 25 regard to waiver, I will be very brief with regard to it

1 right now.

2 THE COURT: The bankruptcy side of Skadden doesn't 3 talk to the litigation side?

4 MR. WASSERSTEIN: We talk. And, in fact, your 5 Honor, the way the issue came up in Cybergenics was not 6 through an argument that there was lack of capacity to sue.
7 The argument came up in Cybergenics as a standing argument.

8 The Court stated at page five of the opinion, and 9 this is after the case had gone back, they also argued for 10 the first time that under a plain reading of Section 544(b), 11 and the reasoning of Hartford Underwriters, the committee
12 lacked standing to bring the fraudulent transfer action 13 because only a trustee or debtor-in-possession has such 14 standing.

15 That is exactly what we did in this case, and we 16 did it in the 12th affirmative defense of our answer. So, 17 we did exactly what the defendants in Cybergenics did, and 18 the Court went on to say a bunch of things about that issue, 19 such as the Court recognized that many courts had approved 20 of the kind of derivative standing arrangement deployed in 21 this case, Cybergenics and elsewhere, noting, and I'm 22 quoting from page 15 to 16, "We are well aware that most 23 courts to consider a creditor or creditors' committee's 24 power to act derivatively under the avoidance provisions in 25 the wake of Hartford Underwriters have reaffirmed so-called

1 'derivative standing' and" --

2 THE COURT: Are we out of Cybergenics because the 3 committees who have brought this action did not do it 4 derivatively?

5 MR. WASSERSTEIN: No. I think they did bring it 6 derivatively in this case as well. If you read the 7 complaint in this action, it was done derivatively because 8 the first thing I did when I read Cybergenics was to go back 9 and read the complaint in this case as well, so, we are 10 exactly where the Cybergenics defendants were when they were 11 up on appeal to the Third Circuit. We're at exactly the 12 same position, and the Supreme Court has held in Curtis
13 Publishing against Butts that the mere failure to interpose 14 a defense prior to the announcement of a decision which 15 might support it cannot prevent a litigant from later 16 invoking such a ground, and that's at 388 U.S. at 143.

17 So, I say in the first instance that we did exactly 18 what we were supposed to do, and if your Honor will recall, 19 your Honor requested that no dispositive motions be made in 20 the case management order in this case. So that we raised 21 it in our answers and we did exactly what the Cybergenics 22 defendants did, and I think that ought to take care of the 23 issue of standing, but we will address it further tomorrow.

24 With regard to Mr. Bernick's -- let me just back up 25 for a second. I believe you may find this hard to believe

1 but I agree with Mr. Baena with regard to his statement that 2 Cybergenics really prevents any consideration of the 3 proposal that your Honor made in the proposed case 4 management order.

5 THE COURT: The dec action.

6 MR. WASSERSTEIN: In the dec action.

7 THE COURT: Because there's no case or controversy.

8 MR. WASSERSTEIN: That is the reason for it.

9 THE COURT: And that's why I premised my remarks
10 earlier by saying I wanted a dialogue today. If I didn't 11 put something out, I don't know what I would have received 12 in return.

13 MR. WASSERSTEIN: I think it's a problem on two 14 levels but I think that the problem doesn't get cured by Mr.
15 Bernick's proposed solution to it, either.

16 I think it's a problem on the first level of Grace 17 suing the committees. In the first instance, I would 18 suggest that under Cybergenics, there's an issue as to the 19 committees' right to sue or be sued under Section 1103(c), 20 where the Court specifically states that trustees have the 21 capacity to sue or be sued but there is no corresponding 22 capacity with regard to committees. So, there's that issue 23 to begin with.

24 But aside from that, Grace does not have an actual 25 controversy with the committees vis-a-vis the fraudulent

1 transfer. If Grace has a controversy at all, it would be 2 with Sealed Air. Similarly, the committees have no
3 controversy with Sealed Air because Cybergenics says they 4 don't, that they can't bring it, so that there's no 5 controversy at the first level. There's no controversy at 6 the second level. Much with Mr. Bernick's proposal, I
7 submit to your Honor that there's still no controversy.
8 Again, there's no controversy between Sealed Air and Grace
9 because they say the same thing. There's no controversy 10 with individual creditors because an individual creditor 11 can't sue Grace with regard to a fraudulent transfer, nor 12 can Grace sue the individual creditors with regard to the 13 same thing. And I would point out to your Honor that the 14 Third Circuit has required in declaratory judgment action 15 that there be an actual adversity of interest, actual 16 adversity, and that's Step Saver Data Systems against Wyse 17 Technology, 912 F. 2d 643, and that's a 1990 case in the 18 Third Circuit.

19 So, where I come out at this point, your Honor, is 20 reluctantly I'm about to make a proposal that nobody has 21 made before.

22 THE COURT: You're going to consent.

23 MR. WASSERSTEIN: No, sir. I'm not consenting.

24 THE COURT: Gee, you know, Mr. Wasserstein, what a 25 surprise.

1 MR. WASSERSTEIN: What a surprise. I'm full of 2 surprises.

3 THE COURT: I'm just overwhelmed as I sit out here.

4 MR. WASSERSTEIN: Let me suggest a way. The 5 problem that we have here, your Honor framed the issue right 6 at the beginning, finality at one point, and that is really 7 my chief concern.

8 The other way to go under Cybergenics is the 9 appointment of a trustee, and I think that everybody here, I
10 would have said everybody here based upon the submissions 11 but I'm not so sure that that's the case anymore. The 12 concern that I have is that finality through use of 1292(b) 13 is not necessarily finality, and the reason for it is that 14 even if your Honor were to certify a question for appeal, 15 the Third Circuit doesn't have to take it.

16 There is only one way in my view to get finality, 17 and let me throw this out as a possible idea. We move to 18 dismiss on the grounds of Cybergenics. There are cross 19 motions that are made that Cybergenics should not apply 20 because, fill in the blanks. There are arguments that could 21 be made that in lieu of dismissal, there ought to be a 22 limited trustee appointed, as Mr. Bernick has argued, or 23 that there ought to be an examiner appointed or that Sealed 24 Air has waived all of these things would come up. Your 25 Honor reluctantly grants the motion to dismiss. Poof, we're

1 in the Third Circuit with regard to all of these issues and 2 anything else that anyone would throw in, and the Third 3 Circuit can do two things.

4 The Third Circuit can affirm, in which case you're 5 back to the problem that you had before trustee versus 6 waiting for reorganization for the possibility of bringing 7 the claim, but if the Third Circuit reverses and says it is 8 appropriate for there to be an examiner or it is 9 appropriate, there is provision or room within Cybergenics 10 for a trustee, a limited trustee, we've solved my problem, 11 and we haven't solved it today but we've solved it a lot 12 sooner than we would to get through a reorganization.

13 THE COURT: Well, I can get the issue up there 14 without dismissing you.

15 MR. WASSERSTEIN: Fine. Your Honor, if we can do
16 that, I'm perfectly happy to do it that way as well. Again, 17 my sole issue is to finality. That's all I'm concerned 18 about, and if we can do it quicker, that's good for my 19 client as well.

20 THE COURT: Let me ask you another question that I 21 haven't asked others, because you'd be a critical player in 22 a court-ordered mediation. What would your position be on 23 that?

24 MR. WASSERSTEIN: I rather not discuss it on the 25 record, your Honor, if you don't mind. I would discuss it

1 at side bar. There are people in this room who are foreign 2 to this and I just don't think it's appropriate to do it 3 that way.

4 THE COURT: Well, the only reason I bring it up, if 5 you look in B & A today, you'll see under the inherent power 6 of the court, they have a right to order mediation.

7 MR. WASSERSTEIN: Obviously, if the Court did 8 something within its power, we would consent to it, of 9 course.

10 THE COURT: Okay. I understand. Anybody else
11 want to be heard? Mr. Kruger, do you want to be heard? I 12 always find you to be a voice of reason, Mr. Kruger, even 13 though you are aligned with the debtors.

14 MR. KRUGER: I may be last. I don't know about 15 voice of reason. There's no doubt Cybergenics sort of 16 dropped a large bomb into this nice process and I think I
17 agree with Mr. Wasserstein that, obviously, everybody wanted 18 to have finality and at least recognize that if there is to 19 be a trial, that if there is an appeal by the loser, it need 20 not be on the basis of the Cybergenics decision. And,
21 unfortunately, I begin to like every proposal I hear. I 22 like the dismissal. I like Mr. Bernick's proposal of the 23 declaratory judgment.

24 The real problem seems to me is to get something in 25 front of the Third Circuit that may give us some reliable

1 guidance as to what the best way is to go forward, and I can 2 think of the order for an examiner, some will appeal from 3 that decision to the Third Circuit and see if that works for 4 them.

5 We could move to dismiss the Milberg, Weiss firm 6 from this case on the grounds that now Cybergenics has been 7 determined, there's no reason for them to continue to run up 8 fees and do activities on behalf of the plaintiffs because 9 that accomplishes nothing, just as a way of getting the 10 Third Circuit to comment on it.

11 I don't know what the right answer is but I think 12 that the real answer is to try to find some decision that 13 the Court is comfortable making with respect to the various 14 choices that have been presented.

15 THE COURT: Sooner rather than later.

16 MR. KRUGER: Sooner rather than later. I'm not 17 sure that the money that has been spent and the effort to 18 get ready for trial is wasted in a sense because, obviously, 19 there has been discovery. There have been reports by 20 experts. Those are not going to go away and those are still 21 all going to be present forever and, obviously, this is an 22 issue that needs to be determined.

23 When we talk about a plenary trustee, there I have 24 some issues because I don't know that's a helpful decision 25 to make because it's sort of like using too big a weapon to

1 try to get to what is only a piece of this puzzle and also 2 not clearly necessary. A trustee standing in the shoes of 3 the debtor may have the same issues that the debtor has with 4 respect to what it does with respect to this prospective
5 litigation, so, it may well be, a better course of conduct 6 may be the examiner with the various parties prepared to 7 submit orders, if you will, or samples of orders to the 8 Court for to you select what the exact role and purpose of 9 the examiner may be, and perhaps using that as a basis to 10 get the Third Circuit to comment on their decision.

11 In the motion that was made for an en banc hearing, 12 the movants point out that there were at least 260 adversary 13 proceedings now pending in the Third Circuit brought by 14 committees. I'm not sure what the Third Circuit meant to do 15 but, obviously, other circuits and other courts all over 16 this country that bankruptcy proceedings have approved the 17 prospect of committees bringing on those kinds of actions.
18 I'm reluctant to see us do something without the Third 19 Circuit's perimeter ultimately because then I think we may 20 in fact spend millions more dollars and end up with the 21 result that is challenged not necessarily on the merits but 22 because of this very narrow reading of the statute.

23 THE COURT: I think that is really where we began, 24 that the Court is reticent to go full speed ahead without 25 some direction, but I can't get any direction unless I get

1 something before them, and one of the ways is to set a trial 2 date. Another is to maybe grant or deny some of the other 3 relief that people seek, and I'm sure with the strength of 4 the law firms involved in this, an expedited appeal is 5 something that should be able to occur.

6 MR. KRUGER: We would hope so. Thank you.

7 THE COURT: All right.

8 MR. BENTLEY: Very briefly, your Honor, Philip 9 Bentley for the Equity Committee. We've heard a lot of 10 proposals today. Almost all of them have been the subject 11 of vigorous controversy. Your Honor has heard that the 12 notion of waiver will be vigorously disputed, so will the 13 notion of proceeding with the declaratory judgment action, 14 same with the limited purpose trustee and the plenary 15 trustee also will be vigorously disputed for practical 16 reasons, not the legal reasons.

17 THE COURT: So you have the answer?

18 MR. BENTLEY: Well, your Honor, I'm not saying 19 anything that your Honor hasn't heard. I would just point 20 out that the only proposal that has not been the subject of 21 vigorous dispute here today is the examiner with expanded 22 powers.

23 Obviously, there's not any guarantee as to any 24 proposal, but the only thing negative that has been said 25 about that as a matter of -- as a legal matter that would

1 solve the problem facing the Court, the only negative that 2 has been raised has been the U.S. Trustee Office's comment
3 that the Third Circuit has not specifically addressed it,
4 and I think that the fair characterization is the Circuit
5 has not addressed it one way or the other.

6 THE COURT: Well, you know, maybe my comments were 7 negative that we've got to pay an examiner, an examiner will 8 cause delay, an examiner may have to retain counsel, you may 9 add ten million dollars to the debtor's estate as a result 10 of the appointment of an examiner. I don't see that as 11 positive.

12 MR. BENTLEY: Understood, your Honor, and I would 13 have thought that perhaps Mr. Bernick's response may have 14 somewhat alleviated the Court's concern in that the debtor 15 is amenable to the examiner looking at this quickly when the 16 thing -- this is something the examiner could look at 17 quickly, possibly without hiring his or her own counsel, but 18 even if they did hire their own counsel, it still could be 19 done quickly and the examiner then could retain the Milberg, 20 Weiss firm. I don't think we've heard anybody disputing 21 that as a possible alternative.

22 THE COURT: Okay. I understand. I noted Fresenius
23 people are here and do they want to be heard?

24 MR. ROSENBLOOM: Your Honor, briefly. The hour is 25 late.

1 THE COURT: No, the hour is not late. We've got 2 all the time to listen to you.

3 MR. ROSENBLOOM: David Rosenbloom on behalf of the 4 Fresenius Medical Care Holdings. We are the case-in-5 waiting, your Honor, and I understand that there are certain 6 differences between the proceeding against Fresenius and the 7 proceeding against Sealed Air. Most notably, we are not on 8 the eve of trial and I do not believe there exists as to our 9 case the consensus that Mr. Baena posits regarding the 10 unanimity of it being perceived to be in the estate's 11 interest to go forward as to those claims.

12 Nonetheless, we share concern of everybody here 13 that downtime is the enemy of the plan, of the parties, and 14 impediment to the Court's work and, so, we have a similar 15 interest in getting our case back on track.

16 Mr. Wasserstein addressed to you the concerns about 17 a case or controversy in the context of an action seeking 18 money damages. I'd like to suggest to the Court that 19 whatever difficulties there are in finding a case in 20 controversy, if it's money damages you're talking about, do 21 not apply to a declaratory judgment action that seeks to 22 declare certain rights, liabilities, interests and property 23 and otherwise.

24 THE COURT: Fine. You then make the declaration 25 there was a fraudulent conveyance. What do you do next?

1 MR. ROSENBLOOM: Let me step back. I believe the 2 controversy that most clearly exists and is clearly 3 distinguishable is the controversy between the committees 4 and the members of the committee and the debtor as to the 5 underlying merits of the fraudulent conveyance litigation 6 and the appropriateness of the debtor's conduct so far.

7 We've heard at least twice today, it's been 8 suggested that the debtor has actually breached its 9 fiduciary duties. Nothing could be more plain to be a 10 controversy with real substantially different interests.
11 The question is, is that controversy susceptible to 12 treatment by a declaratory judgment action or is it 13 susceptible to treatment by this motion that has been 14 suggested, a motion to appoint an examiner.

15 I'll suggest to the Court that whatever the 16 hearing, the hearing Mr. Purch suggested to create a record 17 to justify the appointment of trustee or the hearing that 18 would follow from Mr. Bernick's suggestion of a declaratory 19 judgment action, those are probably going to look like very 20 similar evidentiary hearings. It's the same question. So, 21 the issue that comes down to is does the committee or the 22 members of the committee have the capacity to be sued such 23 that Grace can begin its declaratory judgment to bring 24 forward what is clearly a controversy, and I believe nothing 25 in Cybergenics casts down on all of those cases which had

1 found and even assumed the ability of committees to 2 litigate.

3 Cybergenics addressed the ability of a committee to 4 initiate an action under a specific statute which limited 5 the entities that could bring an action under that statute, 6 nothing more, nothing less. The committees are not one of 7 the entities listed in 544.

8 Cybergenics notably preserves a long line of cases 9 which found intervention as a matter of right for 10 committees. It is hard to understand how a committee to 11 intervene as a party intervention, as party intervention 12 plaintiff or defendant, has a matter of right to be heard.
13 This is part of the committee's right under 1109 to raise 14 issues and be heard on issues if they didn't have the 15 capacity to participate in other adversary proceedings other 16 than the 544 proceeding for money damages that Cybergenics 17 condemns.

18 So, if I understand Mr. Bernick's suggestion, which 19 is a declaratory judgment proceeding, that doesn't 20 necessarily have to contemplate in and of itself the 21 recovery of money but, instead, just the declaration of the 22 rights.

23 The issues raised by both Cybergenics and Mr.
24 Wasserstein should not form impediments to this Court 25 finding justiciable controversy.

1 The other question is how do you get Sealed Air in?
2 Who's got a claim against Sealed Air? One of the things 3 we've been looking at is Rule 19, clearly a party-in-4 interest at least as to Fresenius, if that's how the case
5 came to us, we would agree to consent. We are a proper Rule 6 19 party and whether the debtor brings us in as a party or a 7 committee or a member of the committees or another 8 committee, we think that that much more than the other 9 procedure that is currently before the Court provides us the 10 opportunity to quickly litigate on the merits and obtain, if 11 there's a favorable ruling in our favor, the benefits of 12 that ruling to assert in other actions.

13 That is why we think that if the Court finds that 14 the controversy which is undeniable between the debtors and 15 the committees is, in fact, susceptible to a declaratory 16 judgment action as opposed to just the motion, there will be 17 ways to at least bring us in. We would not want to sit on 18 the sidelines of that hearing, and I think they could bring 19 in parties like Sealed Air or other transferees.

20 We have left aside today I think wisely the issue 21 of what will we do with Owens-Corning type situations if 22 there is a trustee. What is the mandate going to be and so 23 forth. I don't raise those.

24 THE COURT: Owens-Corning is also operating under 25 timeliness in view of the statute of limitations which runs

1 like the first week of October, where that's not the case 2 here.

3 MR. ROSENBLOOM: I agree, and actually would like 4 to point out we would hopefully and certainly assist the 5 Court in making a sufficient effort to concluding any such 6 declaratory judgment proceedings prior to the April date, 7 which is the Owens-Corning analog, April 2nd, 2003.

8 I would also add that a declaratory judgment is not 9 mutually exclusive with some of the other suggestions. It's 10 like my grandmother used to say about chicken soup, it 11 couldn't hurt. All these other things are going on. You 12 could have a declaratory judgment, hear the evidence about 13 the merits of the underlying actions and it could inform the 14 Court's position on the decision it's going to need to make 15 and the record it's going to need to make on a trustee, and 16 I'm concerned about the record because so much has been said 17 about it's so obvious that these actions are in the interest 18 of the estate.

19 I think Grace's position is, in fact, one that's 20 brought about after reflection in an exercise of what they 21 believe to be the proper exercise of their fiduciary duties
22 and the simple potential of money recovery ought not blind 23 any other reviewing court as to the underlying substance of 24 the Grace position or as to the positions of the other 25 transferees.

1 I did promise to be brief, unless the Court had any 2 questions about our position.

3 THE COURT: No. Mr. Baena, you want to be heard?

4 MR. BAENA: Maybe it please the Court, we actually 5 may have accomplished more today, your Honor, than I
6 expected. I do think that there was some forward-going 7 proposals and discussion by the parties but let me get rid 8 of first those that I don't think were forward.

9 THE COURT: I've been looking for a fog cutter.

10 MR. BAENA: Let me cut through the fog that Mr.
11 Bernick left behind in his tall shadow.

12 THE COURT: See, they're not beating up on you now, 13 big, small or indifferent. It's atmosphere.

14 MR. BAENA: As the day goes by and the sun moves, 15 his shadow gets smaller. Your Honor, what Mr. Bernick 16 describes is not a 544 action at all. What he describes, 17 and Cybergenics clearly only involves a 544 action, an 18 action to avoid transfers, and what he describes is not a 19 544 action. It doesn't get us to a monetary judgment. It 20 begs the issue, and the way he lards it up with these 21 additional accoutrements, like we'll throw in some zonolite
22 claims, well, as Mr. Bernick well knows, we had an issue 23 similar to that in the science trial on the zonolite claims.
24 He filed proofs of claims for those claimants on 25 behalf of the debtor as the Court determined he was allowed

1 to, and he used them as the centerpiece of a science trial 2 to debunk the claim that zonolite is harmful, and as part of 3 the process he tried to rule out, he suggested that the 4 committee ought to represent those zonolite claimants that 5 he picked from among the class representatives or punitive 6 class representatives in the course of that litigation, and 7 the committee took the position, Judge Fitzgerald didn't 8 view it differently than the committee articulated the 9 position, that a committee, an official committee, has no 10 statute to represent an individual claimant. We can't do 11 that.

12 So, as he lards this up with zonolite claimants, 13 he's going to lard this up with zonolite lawyers and this 14 case is going to take on a completely different complexion.

15 Moreover, the relief that would come out of that if 16 somehow he could get us to the right point, the relief that 17 comes out of all of that is squarely within the commentary
18 of the Third Circuit in footnote 17 to the Cybergenics
19 opinion, where the Court describes why you don't -- why 20 committees don't want individuals to be at the epicenter of 21 these kind of claims, because it changes the entire legal 22 landscape. It changes the amount of damages. You have to 23 proof up their claims and the amount of damages that they're 24 entitled to in terms of a fraudulent transfer are limited by 25 the amount of each claimant's claim. It throws into serious

1 question how we apply your standards opinion, and I really 2 think it's a non-starter.

3 The notion of an examiner, as you well know, was 4 one that both personal injury and property damage argued to 5 you at the last time you had a status conference about this 6 whole issue as being a viable alternative, and we argued in 7 our submission to the Court, it was requested by the Court, 8 that there is authority for it but there's a problem with 9 it, too. And if we're looking for finality, that problem
10 may be enough of a problem not to pursue that alternative 11 and that is, as crazy as it sounds, trustees and debtors-in-12 possession have a bundle of things given to them under the 13 bankruptcy code which are broadly enumerated as rights, 14 powers and duties and, unfortunately, when you get to the 15 provisions concerning the appointment of an examiner and the 16 expansion of what they can do, it only refers to duties, and 17 there's a serious legal question as to whether the right to 18 bring a lawsuit is a power or a right as opposed to a duty.

19 Some might argue that you can't have a duty without 20 having the power, but we don't want to have that argument.
21 The Court wants to avoid that.

22 Mr. Wasserstein, now I'm going to find myself 23 agreeing with him, making this whole thing rather unusual.

24 THE COURT: I take it not on the motion to dismiss.

25 MR. BAENA: Not on the motion to dismiss, but I do

100

1 find it forward going that there is agreement between us
2 that to live within the contours of Cybergenics without 3 appearing to be too cute, and that's what I think we were 4 concerned about when we made our submission to the Court, 5 that whatever we do here, we certainly want to be entirely 6 respectful to the Third Circuit and we certainly don't want 7 to come up with some cute way of thumbing our nose at the 8 opinion that was issued by them in Cybergenics.

9 So, the problem, of course, is the obvious one. We 10 don't want to have this case dismissed, take that dismissal 11 up on appeal and find out a year and a half from now that 12 whatever we find out, we will find out much too late. I 13 don't think it engenders a decision promptly. That reaches 14 the second objective that the Court has, which is not just 15 finality but that we move this along promptly and not waste 16 the resources that have already been expended.

17 If Sealed Air is truly interested in finality, then 18 it could go ahead right now and appeal the Court's order, 19 just as you invited us to do. It could appeal the Court's 20 order setting this trial. They have a pedestal for an 21 appeal and they could argue whatever it is they wish to 22 argue, but I suspect they don't want to take that option.
23 They rather hold that one until the end of the case.

24 THE COURT: They'll consent to anything as long as 25 they can reserve their right.

1 MR. BAENA: Reserve everything, that's correct. It
2 seems to me that the real -- oh, and let me deal with Mr.
3 Rosenbloom's comments. When I was rereading Cybergenics for 4 about the 400th time, I was sort of getting excited like he 5 seems to have about the fact that the Court kept talking 6 about initiate, initiate, and I was hoping maybe initiate 7 means something else, means like just following the lawsuit 8 and then you can sort of disappear, but it's very clear from 9 the opinion, particularly towards the end of the opinion 10 where the word "initiate" is used interchangeably with the 11 word "prosecute" and other synonyms that indicate that 12 there's a continuing presence, that the Third Circuit didn't 13 anticipate that the debtor would file the suit, just file 14 the suit and go away.

15 THE COURT: You know, you're experienced in 16 bankruptcy matters. What's the likelihood of a debtor-in-17 possession in a fraudulent conveyance action initiating the 18 action?

19 MR. BAENA: It happens every day, Judge. It 20 happens.

21 THE COURT: Debtors-in-possession doing it?

22 MR. BAENA: It happens, particularly where the 23 debtor has no other exit strategy from bankruptcy and 24 because it doesn't have the resources to reorganize.
25 Debtors do file them. We file those actions. I filed them

1 when I was Mr. Kruger's partner. Our firm filed those kinds
2 of actions. It happens.

3 Can I generalize from that? No, I can't, because, 4 obviously, the ugly part is, and it's the ugly part of 5 Cybergenics, ybergenics even remarks it's kind of ugly to 6 let the architect of a fraudulent transfer also be the 7 gatekeeper for the litigation, but then they say, tough, in 8 practice, unless Cybergenics, and even this circuit I didn't 9 think the answer was tough, and indeed, debtors pursue those 10 actions from time to time. When they didn't, they were no 11 longer the gatekeeper. That was the simple evolution of 12 things.

13 Cybergenics creates a problem and we're waiting to 14 find out whether it's a permanent problem. That's exactly 15 where we are.

16 THE COURT: Let me ask you this question, and I'm 17 probably going to ask the same question of Mr. Wasserstein 18 as I've been sitting here listening. Substantively, what's 19 the difference between, other than what Cybergenics says 20 but, substantively, what's the difference between the 21 trustee bringing the action or the committees bringing the 22 action, if any?

23 MR. BAENA: Without Cybergenics being a factor in 24 my answer?

25 THE COURT: Yes.

1 MR. BAENA: Substantively, I don't see a
2 difference. The undercurrent, I suppose, is the extent of 3 our respective fiduciary duties.

4 THE COURT: I guess what I'm really asking is what 5 does Mr. Wasserstein think that he's sacrificing if we were 6 to consent to the committees bringing the action where we 7 are now as opposed to removing Mr. Bernick and company, 8 appointing a trustee to bring the same action?

9 MR. BAENA: From Sealed Air's perspective, I can't 10 imagine what they think they're giving up. There may be 11 some really esoteric argument that creditors might have with 12 an estate about vis-a-vis the unsecured creditors versus the 13 asbestos claimants, do we have the same fiduciary duties 14 that a trustee has to their constituents, so, if we make a 15 mistake in this litigation, we're somehow held accountable 16 to their constituency as well.

17 We know a trustee is held accountable to all 18 constituencies, but none of them, in my judgment, impacts 19 Sealed Air. And I think you've made it abundantly clear and 20 I think we've made it abundantly clear as well, they're 21 getting sued. There's no doubt about it. They're going to 22 trial with somebody as a plaintiff. You know, in some 23 places you want to get that fight on the road and other 24 places you want to take your time.

25 THE COURT: Are they just being difficult to be

1 difficult because delay potentially works in their favor?

2 MR. BAENA: Well, I too feel a little bit awkward
3 telling the Court what I think they're doing in a public
4 forum. I would gladly do so at side bar with them there. I 5 just don't think the media --

6 THE COURT: Did you see that last row back there?
7 That was the press.

8 MR. BAENA: Well, it's worse than that. We've got 9 traders out there and we view them as the golden goose and 10 we don't want to kill them.

11 THE COURT: When you say "traders", you mean 12 t-r-a-d-e-r-s.

13 MR. BAENA: We've got both kinds in the room. But 14 here's what we see as a very simple formula that emerges 15 from all this conversation. Mr. Bernick is happy to go.
16 He's had an opportunity to do whatever damage he sought to 17 do. He's happy to leave. He's certainly happy not to be in 18 Newark during, if we accommodate Mr. Inselbuch, Christmas.

19 This case ought to proceed as it is with the 20 exception that the debtor is out. The committees will 21 prosecute this lawsuit just as the committees are 22 prosecuting this lawsuit right now. The debtor is out.
23 Kirkland & Ellis is out. We ought to take Mr. Bernick's 24 invitation and RSVP that we accept it.

25 THE COURT: I don't know if he made that

1 invitation.

2 MR. BAENA: He's getting pretty close.

3 THE COURT: I suggest to him a slow boat to China.
4 Are you old enough to remember that?

5 MR. BAENA: Yes, I am, and I know a variation that 6 I used to sing in the army.

7 THE COURT: That's all right.

8 MR. BAENA: The committees, and there's a slight 9 variation on what Mr. Inselbuch suggested, the committees 10 ought to be allowed to file their motion for the appointment 11 of a trustee, but we would ask that you not rule on them.
12 Let's go to trial. Let's see what happens with Cybergenics.
13 If Cybergenics comes back and says, sorry, the en banc
14 decision is, sorry, got it all wrong, then all we have to do 15 is Rule 17 substitution party. Even if we completed the 16 trial, we can substitute the trustee in, and 17 is 17 incorporated into the rulings of bankruptcy procedure 18 under --

19 THE COURT: That's like me holding the trial, then 20 if I think the Third Circuit is going to go the other way, I 21 say, well, I'll vacate my opinion.

22 MR. BAENA: Maybe. Again, maybe not everything was 23 bad in Cybergenics. The Court went out of its way to 24 disabuse even the transferee of the notion that this was a
25 standing --

1 THE COURT: I have to believe that there was a 2 purpose that the Third Circuit held in the manner they did.
3 Okay.

4 MR. BAENA: I believe that, too.

5 THE COURT: Whatever the purpose may be, I'm not 6 going to verbalize it, but they had a purpose, just didn't 7 happen itinerant. Okay.

8 MR. BAENA: In the same theory, Judge, they made a 9 distinction between standing and real party-in-interest and 10 that's a very material difference under Rule 17, because 11 standing means we could have never brought the suit. Real 12 party-in-interest means that somebody ought to be 13 substituted in to bring that suit, but we may decide, the 14 Court may decide I'm going forward on this, I'll see what 15 happens en banc, and if it is determined, first of all, the 16 committees are protected from any professional claims that 17 can be asserted against them for not having the motion for 18 appointment of a trustee, and I think we got to be very 19 concerned about that since it doesn't appear that the Third 20 Circuit protects those who practice in this courtroom, so, 21 the committees ought to have that opportunity.

22 The Court can go forward with the trial. If the 23 Third Circuit en banc says, no, we're not changing our mind, 24 that's exactly what we meant, then the Court, depending, we 25 could even be finished with the trial at that point in time

1 and it doesn't affect the judgment that was obtained. You 2 just substitute the trustee at that point in time for the 3 holders of the judgment.

4 THE COURT: Maybe the simple answer is we're 5 getting too complex. I set a trial date and everybody
6 mandamus me. You can't hold that trial, Cybergenics
7 prohibits it. Maybe that's the answer.

8 MR. BAENA: I guess I have a question of the Court
9 and, that is, I've been operating since you first said it 10 under the assumption that we don't file any motions here 11 unless you tell us we can.

12 THE COURT: That's good thinking.

13 MR. BAENA: And we haven't. But we want to know if 14 that applies to a motion for the appointment of a trustee.

15 THE COURT: No.

16 MR. BAENA: So, we're free to file motion for the 17 appointment of a trustee?

18 THE COURT: Absolutely, as long as you do it 19 promptly.

20 MR. BAENA: That would be before Judge Fitzgerald 21 in this case unless the Court withdraws the reference as to 22 that motion if and when it's filed --

23 THE COURT: We withdraw.

24 MR. BAENA: -- we have to deal with that.

25 THE COURT: We withdraw the reference.

1 MR. BAENA: Okay.

2 THE COURT: You've got two days to file it, like 3 Mr. Wasserstein agreed.

4 MR. BAENA: Okay. I think it's become simple,
5 Judge. Let's go forward. Let's just go forward on the 2nd.
6 We'll file our motion. Don't rule on it yet. Let's see 7 what happens and --

8 MR. INSELBUCH: Did you say we have two days to 9 file this motion?

10 THE COURT: Can you?

11 MR. INSELBUCH: Which two days?

12 THE COURT: You know, that's like the old Henny
13 Youngman joke, my wife and I go out to dinner twice a week.
14 She goes Tuesdays, I goes Thursdays.

15 MR. INSELBUCH: I just wanted to make sure today 16 wasn't one of the two.

17 THE COURT: No. How about by Friday?

18 MR. BAENA: File it in this court?

19 THE COURT: Yes.

20 MR. BERNICK: Then we would have how long to 21 respond?

22 THE COURT: File simultaneously. You know what 23 they're going to say. As a matter of fact, you probably 24 already have it drawn up.

25 MR. BAENA: The relief being going to seek --

1 MR. INSELBUCH: There is now an order in place that 2 the trial will resume on December 2nd?

3 THE COURT: Oh, we're going to issue one.

4 MR. INSELBUCH: So, this motion to appoint a
5 trustee can be made in light of that order?

6 THE COURT: That's correct. That's correct.
7 That's the only order that you can really count on is we're 8 going to go forward on December 2nd. There will probably be 9 more contained in it.

10 MR. BAENA: It would be the property damage 11 committee's intention, if it didn't have consensus with the 12 personal injury committee, to file a motion also asking the 13 Court not to hear the motion until we determined whether or 14 not it's necessary.

15 THE COURT: There you and the personal injury
16 claimants may fall out of bed.

17 MR. BAENA: We haven't so far. We really behaved 18 ourselves.

19 MR. KRUGER: Are you talking about a plenary 20 trustee or just limited purpose?

21 MR. BAENA: We believe there's authority for 22 limited trustee.

23 THE COURT: I thought you were talking about a 24 plenary trustee.

25 MR. BAENA: We'll ask both ways alternatively.

110

1 MR. KRUGER: Do we have an opportunity to respond
2 after the papers have been filed by both sides?

3 THE COURT: No.

4 MR. KRUGER: We have to file by Friday as well?

5 THE COURT: I want to get on with this process. I
6 don't want to elongate the process. I want it to end.

7 MR. KRUGER: Are we going to presume, your Honor, 8 that this trustee will indeed commence this litigation 9 rather than having the obligations of a trustee to examine 10 into the facts and all the rest that goes with it? I mean, 11 I want to understand what it is that I'm supposed to be 12 arguing about.

13 THE COURT: Talk to Mr. Inselbuch later and he'll 14 tell you what he's going to do.

15 MR. BERNICK: As I understand, the proposal is to 16 make the motions and have the Court hold the matters in 17 abeyance until some later point in time.

18 THE COURT: I didn't say that. That's what Mr.
19 Baena said.

20 MR. BERNICK: I guess the only thing we can do is 21 let's see what they file. I can anticipate a lot of what 22 they're going to say but I can't anticipate what they're 23 going to say particularly about when this matter should be 24 taken up, and what we'd like to have is a couple days to at 25 least look at what they have to say and file a response.

1 THE COURT: Likewise, on your way out, in the 2 hallway talk to Mr. Baena. He'll lay it out for you. He'll 3 tell you exactly what he's thinking, just as he said here.
4 You know he's going to make application for a trustee or 5 potentially a limited trustee and the Court should not rule
6 on it until after the hearing. Okay? What more do you want 7 to know?

8 MR. BERNICK: That's fine. I'll speak with Mr.
9 Inselbuch as well to find out what his --

10 THE COURT: You have his telephone number. I know 11 that from prior argument.

12 All right. Mr. Wasserstein, I posed the question 13 to Mr. Baena. I want to pose the same question to you.
14 What is the difference between -- you're going to be a 15 defendant regardless.

16 MR. WASSERSTEIN: Yes, sir.

17 THE COURT: What's the difference between having 18 the committee bring the action or appointing a trustee to 19 bring the action substantively to you?

20 MR. WASSERSTEIN: An eight-letter word, finality.

21 THE COURT: Okay.

22 MR. WASSERSTEIN: If the committee brings the 23 action and I win, which is the same position I presented to 24 your Honor on September 24th, I have no assurance that that 25 action is going to -- that that result is going to stand up

1 and that it's not going to be attacked collaterally by some 2 other creditor, somebody else, some way, somehow, and that 3 is the concern that I have and that is the difference.

4 THE COURT: Is there any consent that they could 5 offer to you that would allay that fear?

6 MR. WASSERSTEIN: Every asbestos person, every 7 asbestos claimant in the world would have to consent to 8 that, Judge, and that I'm not even sure would be enough.
9 The government might have to consent. I can't begin to tell 10 you.

11 THE COURT: All right. I just didn't want to leave 12 here today and the reason I posed the question thinking that 13 your lack of consent was arbitrary to delay the process.

14 MR. WASSERSTEIN: Oh, no, your Honor, not at all.
15 And that's why I said that if this could be determined some 16 way where the Third Circuit were to say that a limited 17 purpose trustee is okay to bring this case and to confer the 18 jurisdiction, that would protect me. I don't have a problem 19 with that.

20 THE COURT: Can I appoint a trustee who would then 21 hire Milberg, Weiss together with the committees to 22 prosecute the action?

23 MR. WASSERSTEIN: I think I have a problem with it.
24 I'd have to think a little bit more about it. I do have the 25 concerns that I have had contact with some of the people at 1 Grace, if they are representing Grace, we've had these 2 common interest discussions.

3 THE COURT: What if I took Mr. Baena's Rule 17 and 4 I substituted a trustee for the committees?

5 MR. WASSERSTEIN: I don't follow you, your Honor.

6 THE COURT: What if I appointed a trustee -- 7 okay -- and the trustee then took over the prosecution from 8 the committees to have a right to intervene.

9 MR. WASSERSTEIN: I think I have the same problem 10 as far as counsel is concerned.

11 THE COURT: So, you still object to Milberg, Weiss
12 proceeding?

13 MR. WASSERSTEIN: I believe I would, sir.

14 THE COURT: Because?

15 MR. WASSERSTEIN: On the same ground they have 16 access now to all of the common interest matters that I have 17 had with Grace principals.

18 THE COURT: Well, wouldn't the trustee ultimately 19 get exposure to all of those?

20 MR. INSELBUCH: We should have had that from the 21 beginning.

22 MR. BAENA: In other words, they did it wrong in 23 the first instance, your Honor, and if Cybergenics is right, 24 we did it wrong in the first instance, if we do it right and 25 he shouldn't be involved and the estate shouldn't have

114

1 aligned itself with Sealed Air, which is clearly the 2 implication of Cybergenics, the committees and the trustee 3 shouldn't benefit from it. That's ridiculous. It was their 4 mistake.

5 THE COURT: One person at a time.

6 MR. BERNICK: Judge Dreier delimited those 7 privileged matters that we had to give up that are germane 8 to the case. This was litigated specifically and unless he 9 screwed up on that, which I don't think that he did, the 10 parameters of privileged communications and the like that 11 are available to whoever it is that prosecutes this case
12 have already been defined, so, I don't understand Mr.
13 Wasserstein's point, somehow there's privileged 14 communication that somehow would be compromised here.

15 The line has already been drawn and I don't 16 understand Mr. Baena would be somehow hurt in the process
17 because the Milberg firm got whatever Judge Dreier thought 18 was necessary to prosecute the case.

19 THE COURT: Excuse me. One moment. We should 20 permit Mr. Wasserstein to continue. What is the conflict 21 with the trustee hiring Milberg, Weiss, which would seem to 22 be efficient, would seem to conserve estate assets, rather 23 than having a trustee have to hire new counsel to come up to 24 speed?

25 MR. WASSERSTEIN: If Mr. Bernick is correct that it

115

1 would not impact any privileged communications, then I
2 probably don't have a problem with it.

3 THE COURT: Let me ask you this. Will you
4 consent -- I know you won't consent to -- would you consent 5 to the appointment of a trustee to retain Milberg, Weiss to 6 prosecute the action?

7 MR. WASSERSTEIN: With what limitations placed upon 8 information that could go from Grace employees to the 9 trustee to Milberg, Weiss?

10 THE COURT: Well, how would that differ from what 11 Milberg, Weiss has already ascertained from Grace employees 12 to the discovery?

13 MR. WASSERSTEIN: To the extent it has obtained 14 information through discovery, I have no problem with that, 15 Judge, none whatsoever.

16 THE COURT: What if I were to create some type of 17 standstill as to the parties are in today as they would have 18 been on September 30 to prosecute the action?

19 MR. WASSERSTEIN: It probably would work.

20 MR. FRIEDMAN: Judge, for what it's worth, I think 21 the issue that Mr. Wasserstein is raising would be the same 22 issue one way or the other, whether it was Milberg, Weiss or 23 any law firm. A law firm brought in tomorrow brand new, it 24 would be the same issue.

25 THE COURT: Generic.

1 MR. FRIEDMAN: Generic. It has nothing to do with 2 Milberg, Weiss.

3 THE COURT: No. And I didn't mean Milberg, Weiss.

4 MR. FRIEDMAN: We don't currently possess any 5 information that would conflict us out. We don't currently 6 have access to any Sealed Air defense strategies or anything 7 else.

8 THE COURT: Other than you've gained through 9 discovery.

10 MR. FRIEDMAN: Public discovery.

11 MR. WASSERSTEIN: I think what Mr. Friedman is 12 saying is correct. It's a generic problem as opposed to a 13 Milberg, Weiss problem.

14 THE COURT: So, is the answer here now that the 15 committees move to appoint a trustee. I grant the 16 application. Mr. Bernick is graciously willing to go home 17 and the trustee retains Milberg, Weiss to prosecute the 18 action. The committees can intervene and represent 19 themselves pro se and the case moves on?

20 MR. KRUGER: Is this a limited purpose trustee? Do 21 we get to vote for the trustee? I think we're going a lot 22 too quickly.

23 THE COURT: Well, you raise a good question but 24 it's an impediment. I would think it's a full purpose 25 trustee and I know it's not my appointment. I would only

1 authorize the appointment of trustee and we'd have to get 2 the U.S. Trustee to step in.

3 MR. KRUGER: This is the decision that would be 4 made on the eve of trial --

5 THE COURT: On the eve of trial?

6 MR. KRUGER: -- or is this a decision that's going 7 to be made now?

8 THE COURT: Well, I'm not making it now but it 9 could be made next week.

10 MR. KRUGER: Based on a trial with respect to the 11 facts determinative whether or not a trustee should be 12 appointed, because in all due deference, while this is an 13 important issue, it is not to my mind the only issue in this 14 case. I'm concerned about having a trustee appointed just 15 sort of in this fashion because we want to deal with the 16 Third Circuit issue. There is the whole business of whether 17 this company will run with a plenary trustee in place. Will 18 suppliers continue to do business with them. Will the banks 19 continue to extend credit. Those are issues that, quite 20 frankly, override the question of whether or not Sealed Air 21 should --

22 THE COURT: U.S. Trustee wasn't too concerned.

23 MR. KRUGER: That's nice, because they don't have 24 the interest of trying to protect the creditor interest.
25 They're only interested in protecting their record, so to 1 speak.

2 THE COURT: By the way, don't you have appointment
3 in the trustee, because you're the only one with liquidated
4 claims. You're the only one that can vote.

5 MR. KRUGER: I don't know that's true, your Honor, 6 but it does seem to me that the trustee, if we're going to 7 have a plenary trustee, number one, gets to pick their own 8 counsel, not anybody else's selection of counsel. That's an 9 independent issue for the trustee. Whether or not the 10 trustee wants to conduct an examination to determine whether 11 or not this is an action worth prosecuting is a separate 12 issue for a trustee.

13 I mean, it just seems to me we're going to talk 14 about a plenary trustee --

15 THE COURT: Do you really think that a trustee who 16 would be appointed here would walk away from this 17 litigation?

18 MR. KRUGER: I'm not sure, your Honor, that I want 19 to prejudge it for a trustee because then they've lost 20 whatever independence they're supposed to have and I have no 21 confidence in the result.

22 MR. BERNICK: If your Honor is seriously saying 23 we're going to entertain a plenary trustee for this case, 24 obviously, Grace is not agreeable to that, and if that is 25 what your Honor seeks to do, then we're going to need

1 some ---

2 THE COURT: You know what my MO is, Mr. Bernick?
3 When you read all those things in those judge books about 4 the American judiciary, you never know what he's thinking 5 and you know what, because I don't know what I'm going to 6 do.

7 MR. BERNICK: I thought we were going down the path
8 as you discussed it which was that if we had a limited
9 trustee for purposes of prosecuting the claim against Sealed
10 Air, that the privileges as they stood, what privileged 11 information was necessary to prosecute the case per Judge 12 Dreier's order was in place, that, therefore, you had the 13 latitude, the trustee would have the latitude to retain 14 Milberg, Weiss, that Sealed Air could take the position that 15 there had been -- that there was a joint defense, 16 information that was now in the hands of the adverse party, 17 that we're out of the case, therefore, we don't have to 18 worry about collateral estoppel issues, and the only thing I 19 was going to stand up to say is we can't have arguments that 20 what the trustee says are judicially usable in the Chapter
21 11 case, although the evidence can be usable in the Chapter 22 11 case. I thought we actually sounded pretty close. But 23 then my colleague over here asked one question too many.
24 Are we saying now this is a plenary trustee and we got going 25 down --

120

1 MR. WASSERSTEIN: Your Honor, we would also at that 2 point wish to move to seek an appeal on your 1292(b).

3 THE COURT: Well, I hope somebody does. I'm trying 4 to encourage you.

5 MR. WASSERSTEIN: I'm not as concerned with regard 6 to the trial date as I am concerned with the authority of 7 the Court to granting a special, a limited purpose trustee 8 under 1292(b).

9 THE COURT: I have to tell you, it's not my first 10 choice. Okay. And I'm enamored of other things more than 11 that.

12 MR. INSELBUCH: One small point. You know, I
13 didn't want to sit here silently why Mr. Bernick keeps 14 saying that if his intervention is removed from this case, 15 that that's the end of the collateral estoppel.

16 We would still urge whatever arguments we might 17 urge at some point about collateral estoppel and, of course, 18 it would be for the Court to decide those issues.

19 THE COURT: I hope I didn't provide him with any 20 solace from something I may have or may not have said.

21 MR. INSELBUCH: But I think the bottom line here, 22 everyone expressed their view, we have to tee something up
23 in the Third Circuit.

24 THE COURT: I think we made a good record today.

25 MR. INSELBUCH: I think we have displayed for the 121

1 Third Circuit the conundrums that they've placed on how many 2 pieces of litigation that are pending in the Third Circuit, 3 several hundred, but am I still to understand that your 4 Honor is going to enter an order that the case will go to 5 trial on December 2nd and that we are under all of the 6 instructions to file our motion with respect to the 7 appointment of the trustee by Friday and everyone can 8 simultaneously respond to that?

9 THE COURT: That's correct.

10 MR. INSELBUCH: I can say for everyone's benefit, I 11 believe, and I'll advise them if we change our mind, that 12 given what the U.S. Trustee has had to say about the lack of 13 authority for something less than a plenary trustee, we 14 would be constrained to ask for a plenary trustee, mindful 15 of the issues that the unsecured creditors' committee 16 raises, simply because we would have to have something in 17 front of the Third Circuit that would fit squarely within 18 the Cybergenics language.

19 THE COURT: Do you think that when Mr. Kruger 20 months ago declined on behalf of the unsecured creditors to 21 bring this action, he was prescient?

22 MR. INSELBUCH: No, no, just chicken.

23 MR. BERNICK: I will say, your Honor, this goes 24 back to one of the first hearings in the case when the issue 25 of this kind of claim came up, and there was somebody who

1 said why don't we have an examiner.

2 THE COURT: All right. I've nothing further. If 3 everybody has had an opportunity to be heard, we will be in 4 recess.

5 (Whereupon, the proceedings are adjourned.)
